INTRODUCTION

This Catalogue aims to provide clear and understandable information on the various remedies and resources available to domestic violence victims in Kosovo. It answers questions that victims or potential victims of domestic violence may have, such as what a protection order is or who can request it. A list of available resources (the help line, shelters and other relevant stakeholders) for victims of domestic violence is also included. The information provided is mainly based on Kosovo's legal and policy framework on domestic violence and on OSCE field research carried out Kosovo-wide.

This Catalogue is distributed to institutions dealing with victims and potential victims of domestic violence (civil society organizations, Kosovo police, courts, victim's advocacy offices, shelters and municipal bodies such as municipal human rights units, municipal officers for gender equality and centres for social welfare) to be used as an instrument to help them provide clear responses to domestic violence-related questions.

The Catalogue demonstrates OSCE's strong commitment to combating domestic violence and protecting victims. Through the Catalogue, the OSCE expects that victims and potential victims will increase their understanding of domestic violence-related issues. The mapping and contact details of main stakeholders at the municipal level will also facilitate networking among them. The OSCE is convinced that victims and potential victims will greatly benefit from stronger partnership, involvement and co-ordination among all stakeholders.

WHAT IS DOMESTIC VIOLENCE?

There is no universal definition of domestic violence. In Kosovo, it is defined as any intentional act or omission that results in abuse, when committed by a person who is or has been in a domestic relationship with the victim, such as:

- Physical abuse: use of any kind of physical force; any act that may cause or threaten to cause physical pain; physical assault regardless of the consequences; forcibly entering and removing the victim from a common residence or the victim's residence; causing victims to fear for their physical well-being; kidnapping.
- Psychological abuse: use of psychological pressure; any act that may cause or threaten to cause psychological suffering; provoking a feeling of fear, personal danger or threat of dignity; insult, offence, calling by offensive names and other forms of violent intimidation; repetitive behaviour with the aim of degrading the victim; unlawfully limiting the freedom of movement of the victim; causing victims to fear for their emotional well-being.
- Sexual abuse: non-consensual sexual acts and sexual ill-treatment.
- Economic abuse: property damage or destruction or threatening to do this; causing victims to fear for their economic well-being.

Domestic violence is above all a human rights concern. It has deep roots in unequal relations of power. Authorities have the obligation to prevent domestic violence, protect victims and prosecute the perpetrators.

WHO IS A VICTIM OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE? WHO IS A PERPETRATOR OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE?

A victim of domestic violence is a person who suffers from an act of domestic violence. In spite of the fact that women are more often the victims of domestic violence, men, children, the elderly and persons with disabilities may also be domestic violence victims. Domestic violence can affect anyone regardless of sex, age, religion, gender identity, sexual orientation, ethnic group, political affiliation or other status.

A perpetrator of domestic violence is a person who commits an act of domestic violence. Not only men are perpetrators; women may also be considered perpetrators if they commit an act of domestic violence.

Victims and perpetrators of domestic violence are connected through domestic relationships. A domestic relationship exists when the victim and the perpetrator:

- Are or were engaged, married, in an extra-marital union or cohabiting in a common household;
- Are parents of a common child;
- Use a common house and are connected by blood, marriage, adoption or guardianship (including parents, grandparents, children, grandchildren, nephews, siblings, aunts, uncles or cousins);
- Are procedural parties in a dispute involving a family relationship.

WHAT IS THE PURPOSE OF THE LAW ON PROTECTION AGAINST DOMESTIC VIOLENCE AND THE KOSOVO PROGRAM AGAINST DOMESTIC VIOLENCE?

The Law on Protection against Domestic Violence provides a set of legal measures aiming to protect domestic violence victims. The law defines concepts such as domestic violence and domestic relationships and explains which kind of protection measures and orders exist as well as the procedures to follow in order to obtain them.

The Kosovo Program against Domestic Violence and Action Plan 2011-2014 addresses important issues such as the lack of co-operation among institutions dealing with domestic violence, the low level of capacity for addressing domestic violence issues among the main stakeholders, gaps in the referral system and the lack of infrastructure to support victims. Kosovo institutions, civil society representatives and international organizations actively contributed to its design for almost one year. The Program pursues three objectives:

- To establish efficient and comprehensive mechanisms for the prevention of domestic violence;
- To have efficient protection mechanisms for victims;
- To ensure efficient services for the rehabilitation and integration of victims and perpetrators of domestic violence.

The Program includes numerous activities that should be implemented from 2011 to 2014 in order to meet the objectives. The establishment of a monitoring and co-ordination mechanism is also foreseen.

WHO IS A “PROTECTED PARTY”?

A protected party is a person who suffers from domestic violence and his or her dependants and for whose benefit a protection order is sought. A protection order, an emergency protection order or a temporary emergency protection order issued by a court or the police will provide protection to the protected party.

WHAT ARE PROTECTION MEASURES AND WHAT PROTECTION MEASURES EXIST?

Protection measures are measures issued by a court or the police to protect a person who is exposed to violence by changing the circumstances which may allow the perpetrator to commit more acts of violence. Protection measures can limit perpetrators from visiting their places of residence and can prohibit perpetrators from seeing their children, in addition to other measures. These measures are issued for the duration of a protection order. Once protection measures end, they will no longer affect the property rights or the custody rights of the perpetrator.

A municipal court can issue protection orders or emergency protection orders containing one or more protection measures. Kosovo police can issue temporary emergency protection orders containing only some of the protection measures. This is discussed in more detail below.

Kosovo police are responsible for ensuring that the perpetrator obeys the protection measures.

The protection measures that can be issued are:

- Protection measure of psycho-social treatment for perpetrators

The aim of this measure is to prevent violent behaviour by perpetrators by requiring them to undergo psycho-social treatment to address the causes underlying their violent acts. This measure can be issued in combination with any other preventative measure. Psycho-social treatment will be in force as long as needed, but no more than six months. The Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare together with the Ministry of Health and other relevant institutions are responsible for preparing further legal measures on the implementation of this measure.

- Protection measure of prohibition of approaching the victim

This measure will be issued to protect not only victims, but also their dependants and other persons if necessary. The measure will be issued against a person who has committed domestic violence if there is a risk of further violence. The measure must specify the location, region and distance within which the perpetrator cannot approach the victim.

- Protection measure of prohibition of harassment of the victim

This measure will be imposed on a perpetrator when there is a risk of further domestic violence. Child custody will be entrusted temporarily to the victim and parental rights will be removed from the perpetrator temporarily.

- Protection measure of removal from apartment, house or other home

This measure will be imposed on a person who has committed violence against a victim sharing the same apartment, house or home when there is a risk of further domestic violence. The perpetrator will be obliged to immediately leave the apartment, house or other living premises in the presence of a police officer.

- Protection measure of accompanying the victim

This measure will be imposed with the purpose of protecting the victim by accompanying him or her during the collection of personal items. A police officer is responsible for accompanying the victim in such cases.

- Protection measure for medical treatment for alcohol and psychotropic dependency

This measure of mandatory medical treatment for alcohol and psychotropic dependency will be imposed on a person who has committed domestic violence under the influence when there is risk of further domestic violence. The Ministry of Health is responsible for preparing further legal measures on the implementation of this measure.

- Protection measure of confiscation of item

The measure of confiscation of an item that was used to commit or could be used to commit an act of violence is imposed to protect a domestic violence victim or other persons. This measure must be implemented in accordance with the Kosovo criminal code.

- Property protection measures

In addition to the above-mentioned measures, the court may:

- Order the perpetrator to: allow the protected party to use shared living premises or a part of the premises; pay rent for a temporary home for the victim or pay alimony to the protected party and any children (if the perpetrator is obliged to support the children); allow the protected party to return to the household;
- Prohibit the perpetrator or the protected party from selling any assets within a determined period of time;
- Offer the possibility to protected parties to exclusively keep and use their own personal assets;
- Impose any other measures necessary to protect the safety, health or welfare of the protected party or any person who is in a domestic relationship with the victim.

The perpetrator has the right to collect personal belongings in the presence of police officers.

WHAT ARE THE PROCEDURES FOR OBTAINING A PROTECTION ORDER?

What is a protection order?

A protection order is an order issued by a municipal court which provides protection measures for a victim of domestic violence against a perpetrator. The municipal court will review a petition for a protection order and will decide within 15 days after receiving the petition.

Who can request a protection order?

A petition for a protection order can be submitted by:

- A victim of domestic violence;
- An authorized representative of the victim;
- A victim's advocate (upon consent of the protected party);

- A representative of the centre for social welfare of the municipality where the victim permanently or temporarily resides, when the victim is a minor;
- A non-governmental organization (NGO) that is familiar with the situation of the victim.

What should be the form and content of a petition for a protection order?

A petition for a protection order can be submitted in writing or verbally. The petition should include:

- The name of the court;
- The name, address and occupation of the perpetrator;
- The name and address of the protected party and of the person who has submitted the petition, and their relationship to the perpetrator; if revealing the address would put in danger the protected party or the petitioner, an alternative address will be provided or the records containing the address will be kept secret;
- A detailed description of the events in regard to the domestic violence acts. If possible, evidence should be attached;
- The reasons for needing a protection order;
- The proposed protection measures.

Who will review and decide on a petition for a protection order?

The municipal court will review a petition for a protection order and will decide within 15 days after receiving the petition. The decision to grant or reject a petition for a protection order must be fully reasoned. A decision granting a protection order must link the facts of the case to the particular protection measures ordered.

Before deciding, the court will hold a hearing with the following persons:

- The victim, an authorized representative or the victim's advocate;
- The perpetrator or an authorized representative;
- The petitioner;
- Any witness deemed necessary by the court;
- A representative from the centre for social welfare of the municipality where the minor or person who lacks capacity to act resides permanently or temporarily, in cases where:
  - The petitioner is under the age of 18 or lacks the capacity to act on his or her own;
  - The alleged acts of domestic violence impact a person under the age of 18 or who lacks the capacity to act on his or her own.

The court will hold the hearing in the absence of the perpetrator if the perpetrator was properly informed and the petition is supported by sufficient evidence.

If neither the victims nor their authorized representatives appear at the hearing after being properly informed and they did not inform the court of the reasons for their absence, the court will consider the petition withdrawn. This withdrawal does not prevent the submission of another petition in the future.

Who will issue a protection order?

The municipal court will issue a protection order if it suspects that the perpetrator will unavoidably present a risk to the health, safety or well-being of the victim and/or a person who has a domestic relationship with the victim and who is to be protected by the order.

What will be the content and duration of a protection order?

The protection order should include:

- The protection measures ordered by the court;
- A notification that non-enforcement of the protection order constitutes a criminal offence;
- A notification of the right to appeal and of the fact that the perpetrator may be assisted by an authorized representative.

The duration of a protection order is up to 12 months, but can be extended for no more than 24 months in total.

When will the protection order be effective?

The protection order is effective immediately and must be executed without delay. The order will be sent immediately to the perpetrator, Kosovo police, centres for social welfare as well as other parties to the procedure.

When the order expires, all imposed limitations will stop being effective.

Can a protection order be appealed?

A protection order can be appealed within eight days from the date of issuance. The filing of an appeal does not prohibit the police from enforcing a protection order.

Can a protection order be modified or terminated?

The protected party or the perpetrator may submit a petition for the modification or termination of a protection order when the circumstances have changed. This submission will not prohibit police from enforcing a protection order. The court then will decide if the protection order:

- Remains in force;
- Is modified;
- Is terminated, if the court assesses that the reasons for issuing the protection order no longer exist.

Can a protection order be extended?

The protected parties or their authorized representatives may submit a petition for the extension of the protection order within 15 days before the expiration of the order. The court may decide to:

- Terminate the protection order on its date of expiration;
- Order the extension of the protection order.

If no petition for extension is submitted, the protection order will terminate immediately on the day it expires.

WHAT ARE THE PROCEDURES FOR OBTAINING AN EMERGENCY PROTECTION ORDER?

What is an emergency protection order?

An emergency protection order is an order issued temporarily by a municipal court which aims to protect a victim from his or her perpetrator. The municipal court will review a petition for an emergency protection order and will decide on it within 24 hours after the submission of the petition.

Who can request an emergency protection order?

A petition for a protection order can be submitted by:

- A victim;
- An authorized representative of the victim;
- A victim's advocate (upon consent of the victim);
- A person with whom the victim has a domestic relationship;
- A representative of the center for social welfare of the municipality where the protected party permanently or temporarily resides, when the victim is a minor;
- A person with direct knowledge of an act or acts of domestic violence against the victim;
- An NGO that is familiar with the situation of the victim.

What should be the form and content of a petition for an emergency protection order?

A petition for an emergency protection order can be submitted in writing or verbally to the municipal court. The petition should include:

- The name of the court;
- The name, address and occupation of the perpetrator;
- The name and address of the victim and of the person who has submitted the petition and their relationship with the perpetrator; if revealing the address puts in danger the protected party or the petitioner, an alternative address will be provided or the records containing the address will be kept secret;
- A detailed description of the events regarding the domestic violence acts; if possible, evidence should be attached;
- The reasons for needing a protection order;
- The proposed protection measures.

Who will review and decide on a petition for an emergency protection order?

The municipal court will review a petition for an emergency protection order and will decide on it within 24 hours after the submission of the petition. The decision to grant or reject a petition for an emergency protection order must be fully reasoned. A decision granting an emergency protection order must link the facts of the case to the particular protection measures ordered.

Before deciding, the court will hold a hearing with the following persons:

- The protected party, an authorized representative or the victim's advocate;

- The perpetrator or an authorized representative;
- The petitioner;
- Any witness who knows about the domestic violence case.

The court may hold a hearing and issue an emergency protection order in the absence of the perpetrator, if needed.

Who will issue an emergency protection order?

The municipal court will issue an emergency protection order if it suspects that the perpetrator will unavoidably present a risk to the health, safety or well-being of the protected party and the person who is in a domestic relationship with the victim and who is to be protected by the order.

When will the emergency protection order be effective?

The emergency protection order is effective immediately and must be executed without delay. The order will be sent immediately to the perpetrator, Kosovo police, social welfare centers as well as other parties to the procedure.

When the order expires, all imposed limitations will stop being effective.

What will be the content and duration of an emergency protection order?

The protection order will include:

- The protection measures ordered by the court;
- A notification that non-enforcement of the protection order constitutes a criminal offence;
- A notification of the right to appeal and of the fact that the perpetrator may be assisted by an authorized representative;
- The date of the hearing for the confirmation of the emergency protection order, which will be within eight days of the issuance of the emergency protection order.

The emergency protection order will expire at the end of the hearing for the confirmation of the emergency protection order. At this hearing, the Court will order the termination of the emergency protection order or will issue a protection order.

Can an emergency protection order be appealed?

An emergency protection order can be appealed within three days from the date of issuance. The filing of an appeal does not prohibit police from enforcing an emergency protection order.

Can an emergency protection order be modified or terminated?

Upon review of an appeal filed by the perpetrator or an authorized person, the court may decide to confirm, modify or terminate the emergency protection order.

Can an emergency protection order be extended?

The protected party, authorized representative or victim's advocate may submit a petition for extension of the emergency protection order within two days before it expires. The court then will decide whether to:

- Order the extension of the emergency protection order, if the threats based on which the emergency protection order was issued continue to exist;
- Terminate the emergency protection order on its date of expiration.

If no petition for extension is submitted, the order will terminate immediately on the date of expiration.

WHAT ARE THE PROCEDURES FOR OBTAINING A TEMPORARY EMERGENCY PROTECTION ORDER?

What is a temporary emergency protection order?

A temporary emergency protection order is an order issued by the Kosovo police outside of municipal court working hours which provide protection measures for the victim against the perpetrator.

Who can submit a petition for a temporary emergency protection order?

A petition for a temporary emergency protection order can be submitted by:

- The victim;
- An authorized representative or a victim's advocate;
- A person with whom the victim has a domestic relationship;
- A representative from the centre for social welfare of the municipality where the victim permanently or temporarily resides;
- A person with direct knowledge of an act or more acts of domestic violence against the victim;
- An NGO that is familiar with the situation of a victim of domestic violence.

Who will issue a temporary emergency protection order and on which grounds?

The head of the regional Kosovo police unit against domestic violence will issue a temporary emergency protection order if there are reasons to believe that:

- The perpetrator has committed or threatened to commit an act of domestic violence;
- The perpetrator poses an immediate or imminent threat to the safety, health or well-being of the protected party or a person who has a domestic relationship with the protected party;
- The issuance of a temporary emergency protection order is necessary to protect the safety, health or well-being of the protected party or a person who has a domestic relationship with the protected party.

When will the temporary emergency protection order be effective?

The temporary emergency protection order will be effective immediately after its issuance by the Kosovo police. The order will be sent immediately to the perpetrator and will be enforceable against the perpetrator after it has been delivered personally to him or her.

A copy will be delivered to the protected party and other persons named in the order, the petitioner, the local police station and the centre for social welfare in the municipalities where the protected party and other persons named in the order reside on a permanent or temporary basis, the competent municipal court, and the victim's advocate.

Which protection measures can the Kosovo police include in a temporary emergency protection order?

The Kosovo police can include one or more of the following protection measures in a temporary emergency protection order:

- A prohibition on approaching the victim;
- A prohibition on harassing the victim;
- Removal from apartment, house or other home;
- Confiscation of property.

For a further description of these measures, please see the section above entitled "What are protection measures and what protection measures exist?"

What will be the content and duration of a temporary emergency protection order?

A temporary emergency protection order will state:

- The protection measure ordered by the Kosovo police;
- The duration of the temporary emergency protection order, which expires at the end of the next day that the court is open;
- A warning that a violation of the temporary emergency protection order is a criminal offence;
- A notification that the perpetrator may be assisted by legal counsel;
- An explanation that after the expiry of the temporary emergency protection order, the protected party may file a petition for an emergency protection order or a protection order, subject to appeal;
- A temporary emergency protection order will expire at the end of the next day that the court is open.

WHAT HAPPENS IF THE PERPETRATOR VIOLATES A PROTECTION ORDER, EMERGENCY PROTECTION ORDER OR TEMPORARY EMERGENCY PROTECTION ORDER?

A violation of a protection order, emergency protection order or a temporary protection order is a criminal offence. The person who violates any of these orders will be sentenced to a fine of between €200 and €2,000 or imprisonment for up to six months.

A violation of a protection order, emergency protection order or a temporary protection order will be immediately prosecuted.

The continuous violation in whole or part of any of these orders will be considered aggravating circumstances for the perpetrator.

HOW WILL A CRIMINAL OFFENCE RELATED TO DOMESTIC VIOLENCE BE INVESTIGATED AND PROSECUTED?

If there are reasons to suspect that a crime related to domestic violence was committed, police will arrest the alleged perpetrator in accordance with the law. Even if the suspected perpetrator has not been arrested or the whereabouts of the perpetrator are unknown, the police will regularly provide the victim or the victim's legal representative with an update on the status of the investigation, including any information on the whereabouts of the suspected perpetrator or on the perpetrator's release from custody.

The issuance of a protection order, emergency protection order or temporary protection order will not prevent the victim from filing a criminal complaint regarding actions or inactions constituting criminal offences.

WHICH COURT WILL PROTECT A VICTIM OF DOMESTIC VIOLENCE?

The court that is competent to protect domestic violence victims is the municipal court that has jurisdiction over the municipality where the applicant is temporarily or permanently residing. That municipal court will be responsible to issue protection measures when needed.

At the request of that municipal court, any other municipal court with jurisdiction over the municipality where the protected party has changed place of residence (or if the transfer serves the best interests of the protected party), can also review or issue protection measures.

In cases where a prior request was submitted to a competent court according to Kosovo's family law, this same court will also be responsible to review and issue protection measures when needed.

WHAT ARE THE RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE KOSOVO POLICE TOWARDS DOMESTIC VIOLENCE VICTIMS?

Kosovo police are responsible for responding to any report of acts or threats to commit acts of domestic violence or to any violation of a protection order, an emergency protection order or a temporary protection order, regardless of who reports it. The police will complete an incident report whether or not a crime was committed or an arrest was made, and will provide a copy of the report to the victim or legal representative.

Apart from issuing temporary emergency protection orders, Kosovo police are responsible for using reasonable means to protect domestic violence victims and prevent further violence, such as:

- Establishing a special phone line for reporting domestic violence cases;
- Providing the victim or the victim's legal representative with the official contact of the investigating police officer in cases where the victim needs further assistance; In case there is no investigating police officer, any other officer will assist the victim;

- Informing the victim, legal representative or victim's advocate about the rights of the victim pursuant the law on domestic violence, including the right to request a temporary emergency protection order;
- Informing the victim about legal, psychological and other assistance available from government institutions as well as from the authorized network of NGOs;
- Informing relevant service providers regarding the incident of domestic violence and facilitating contact with the victim, upon the victim's request;
- Providing transport for the victim and, when necessary, the victim's dependants to:
  - An appropriate medical facility for treatment or medical examination;
  - A shelter or other suitable safe haven, upon the request of the victim;
- Providing protection to the person who reports the incident, if needed, in accordance with relevant legal obligations regarding the protection of witnesses;
- Removing the perpetrator from the temporary or permanent residence of the victim or a portion thereof (in regard to the protection measure of removal from apartment, house or other living premises).

In addition, police must immediately report the incident to the centre for social welfare of the municipality where the person permanently or temporarily resides in the cases where:

- The victim is a person under the age of 18 or a person who does not have the capacity to act on his or her own;
- The acts of domestic violence are so serious that they impact the safety or security of a person under the age of 18 or that of a person who does not have the full capacity to act and who is living in the same residence as the perpetrator.

WHAT IS A SHELTER AND WHAT SERVICES DO SHELTERS OFFER TO VICTIMS?

A shelter is a safe place where domestic violence victims and their children can temporarily stay and which provides protection and other services. Currently there are shelters in Gjakova/Đakovica, Gjiilan/Gnjilane, Mitrovicë/Mitrovica, Pejë/Peć, Prishtinë/Priština and Prizren that host victims from communities all over Kosovo.

Victims can stay in the shelter for six months. This can be extended upon agreement with the Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare.

Shelters usually provide victims with accommodation, food, clothing, counseling (psychosocial and legal advice), medical support, vocational trainings (language, computer, internet, reading and writing, sewing, cooking, hairdressing, tailoring), health education, job-seeking services, and activities for children (music, drawing, dancing) among other services. The shelters are patrolled by the police and have various other security arrangements.

Some shelters also contribute to preventing domestic violence by organizing awareness-raising activities and outreach visits to rural areas. Some shelters are also involved in monitoring and advocating for a legal and policy framework in Kosovo that is properly funded and that protects domestic violence victims. Some others conduct regular visits to the victims, once they return to their families or become independent.

Shelters are run by NGOs in agreement with the Ministry of Labour and Social Welfare. On rare occasions, municipalities cover some of the costs.

WHAT OTHER STAKEHOLDERS SUPPORT DOMESTIC VIOLENCE VICTIMS?

Victim's advocacy officers (VAO)

A victim's advocate is a person authorized to advocate for domestic violence victims' interests and to provide support and assistance to the victims. For further information on the role of the VAOs, please refer to the above description of the various kinds of protection orders.

District Legal Aid Bureaus

District Legal Aid Bureaus provide free legal aid to qualifying victims. They facilitate victims' access to justice, for example, by providing information and advice to victims concerning their legal rights, by representing victims before courts or administrative bodies and by assisting with legal drafting and procedures.

Centres for social welfare (CSW)

CSWs play a key role in supporting domestic violence victims to deal with courts and police, especially when victims are minors or otherwise lack the capacity to act on their own. In addition, CSWs evaluate the situation of domestic violence victims and help to find the best solution for the victim. CSWs may also carry out home visits and liaise with hospitals and safe houses. CSWs may provide psycho-social and legal counseling to victims. CSWs may also include a victim in the social assistance scheme (if the victim qualifies for it). For further information on the role of CSWs, please refer above to the description of the various kinds of protection orders.

Ombudsperson Institution (OI)

The OI is an independent institution mandated to address alleged human rights violations by public institutions in Kosovo. The OI conducts investigations, issues reports and provides legal services and public advocacy. The OI provides services free of charge and accepts complaints from anyone in Kosovo. The OI can play a key role in supporting domestic violence victims through addressing shortcomings in regard to the implementation of the law on protection against domestic violence that affect the rights of domestic violence victims.

Agency for Gender Equality (AGE)

The AGE was established within the prime minister's office as a separate body that should promote, develop, advise on and monitor the implementation of gender equality-related laws and policies in Kosovo. Among other activities implemented in the field of domestic violence, the AGE together with line ministries and civil society representatives was one of the main driving forces in the establishment of the Kosovo Program against Domestic Violence and Action Plan 2011-2014.

Committee on Human Rights, Gender Equality, Missing Persons and Petitions (Committee)

The Committee is one of the permanent committees of the Assembly of Kosovo. As well as having a role in the formulation of draft laws related to its mandate, the Committee is also responsible for monitoring the implementation of those laws. The Committee contributes to the fight against domestic violence through monitoring the implementation of the law on protection against domestic violence and the gender equality law.

Municipal human rights units (MHRUs) and municipal officers for gender equality (MOGEs)

MHRUs are mechanisms responsible for the promotion and protection of human rights at the municipal level and in accordance with laws, policies and international standards. MOGEs have the main duty to lead municipal programs related to gender equality in order to ensure the implementation of the gender equality law and other related human rights standards. Both MHRUs and MOGEs can contribute to preventing domestic violence through awareness-raising activities and through networking with key stakeholders in order to better protect victims of domestic violence.

Non governmental organizations (NGOs), municipal working groups (MWGs) and task forces

NGOs, MWGs and task forces play an important role in supporting domestic violence victims. MWGs and task forces are usually composed of stakeholders at the municipal level representing both public institutions and civil society. Refer to the tables below for a description of the activities undertaken by NGOs, MWGs and task forces in the field of domestic violence. This list is based on OSCE field research and is not exhaustive. In addition, NGOs that are familiar with a victim's case can request a protection order, an emergency protection order and a temporary emergency protection order.

Hospitals and schools

Hospitals and schools are important domestic violence stakeholders. They are places where victims of domestic violence can be identified and from where the victims can be referred to other agencies, such as police, courts or shelters. They should be included in all forums dealing with domestic violence issues.

WHAT IS THE NUMBER OF THE DOMESTIC VIOLENCE HELP LINE AND WHAT CAN IT DO FOR VICTIMS?

The free help line number is 0800 11112.

The domestic violence and anti-trafficking help line in Kosovo makes it possible for victims of domestic violence or trafficking in human beings to be identified and referred to the proper institutions. It operates under the victim's assistance and advocacy division of the Kosovo public prosecutor's office. The help line provides:

- Assistance to victims of domestic violence or trafficking by supplying them with the necessary information and contact numbers;
- Information on domestic violence and trafficking in human beings to different audiences (victims and potential victims, media, institutions, international organizations, NGOs, general public);
- An opportunity for the general public and victims to report crimes related to domestic violence and trafficking in human beings.
