Arms control, disarmament and confidence building are significant elements of the Latvian security policy. Latvia works closely with its partners in international (bilateral and multilateral) formats, including OSCE and NATO. Latvia shares the international concerns on the proliferation of weapons and participates in discussions on disarmament and arms control issues. Latvia is a member of all the main international treaties prohibiting weapons of mass destruction and their means of delivery, and restricting their proliferation: the Treaty on the Non-Proliferation of Nuclear Weapons, Comprehensive Nuclear Test Ban Treaty, Convention on the Prohibition of the Development, Production and Stockpiling of Biological and Toxin Weapons and on Their Destruction, Convention on the Prohibition of Development, Production, Stockpiling and Use of Chemical Weapons and on Their Destruction; Latvia is the Subscribing State to the Hague Code of Conduct Against Ballistic Missile Proliferation. Latvia follows the principles of the UN Security Council Resolution 1540 as well as has joined the Proliferation Security Initiative and Global Initiative to Combat Nuclear Terrorism. Latvia has adopted its national legislation accordingly.

Latvia supports relevant resolutions at the UN General Assembly First Committee with regard to non-proliferation and disarmament.

Latvia has developed and implements a strict and effective export control system to prevent illicit trafficking in nuclear, chemical or biological weapons, their means of delivery, and sensitive dual use and strategic goods and technologies. The national legislation and practice with regard to import, export and transit of arms follows the principles and norms of EU, such as EU Council Common Position and relevant regulations and directives.

Latvia is participating in the main international export control regimes: Nuclear Suppliers Group, Australia Group, the Wassenaar Arrangement. Latvia has also legal measures in force for implementing the provisions of the Missile Technology Control Regime.

Latvia pays particular attention to concerns posed by illicit trafficking, uncontrolled proliferation of small arms and light weapons. Latvia submits annual reports on arms export and import to UN Register of Conventional Arms, as well as to OSCE on implementation of Code of Conduct on Politico-Military aspects of Security and OSCE Document on Principles Governing the Conventional Arms Transfers.

This mechanism is stipulated by the existing national procedures (see II.2.)

3.2 Provide information on how your State pursues arms control, disarmament and confidence- and security-building measures with a view to enhancing security and stability in the OSCE area.

Latvia regards the OSCE arms control and confidence and security building measures (CSBMs) as important security policy tools.

Latvia actively participates in Vienna Document evaluation visits and inspections, is a member of Treaty on Open Skies as well as implements bilateral transparency arrangements.

Section II: Intra-State elements

1. National planning and decision-making process

1.1 What is the national planning and decision-making process in determining/approving military posture and defence expenditures in your State?

Latvia has an effective defence planning system that is compatible with NATO planning requirements. It is based on the main state defence principles and NATO recommendations, and provides a framework for an annual planning cycle. Consequently, it ensures that the available resources deliver the maximum defence capability. Regular reviews of the plans are carried out, which allows adjusting the resource allocations taking into consideration the changes in the security environment and the economic development of the country.

The defence planning system is based on a hierarchy of defence planning documents that are divided between the levels of security policy, defence policy and defence planning.

The major planning documents at the security policy level are:

The State Risk Analysis is a comprehensive assessment of the existing and potential risk factors to national security that is prepared by the Constitution Protection Bureau and is approved by the Cabinet of Ministers.

The National Security Concept is based on the State Risk Analysis; this document determines the basic strategic principles, priorities and measures for the prevention of crises and threats to national security. The National Security Concept was approved by the Parliament on October 2, 2008.

The defence policy documents are as follows:

The Military Threat Analysis is an assessment of the possibility of military aggression against Latvia which is prepared by the Ministry of Defence and is reviewed on an annual basis by the Cabinet of Ministers.

The State Defence Concept is drafted on the basis of the Military Threat Analysis and determines the basic strategic principles, priorities and guidelines to ensure state military defence. The State Defence Concept was adopted by Saeima on June 19, 2008. Currently new document is in the process of elaboration

Based on the documents above, the National Armed Forces prepares defence planning documents – implementation plans for the principles set out by security and defence policy:

The National Armed Forces Development Plan determines development aims and future capabilities in the long term (12 years) and sets affordable priorities.

The National Armed Forces Annual Plan is a one-year plan that sets tasks for the following year.

These plans are the basis for the annual budgeting process.

1.2 How does your State ensure that its military capabilities take into account the legitimate security concerns of other States as well as the need to contribute to international security and stability?

Latvia actively participates in a broad range of global and regional multilateral organizations and fora aimed at strengthening international security and legal order including UN, NATO, EU and OSCE.

Participation of our National Armed Forces in international operations is conducted only within the mandate of UN, other international organizations or according to the international agreements binding to the Republic of Latvia. Each deployment of National Armed Forces is in accordance to the national laws and decisions made by Cabinet of Ministers and Saeima.

2. Existing structures and processes

2.1 What are the constitutionally established procedures for ensuring democratic political control of military, paramilitary and internal security forces, intelligence services and the police?

(i) military forces

Latvia has established democratic control over the National Armed Forces. The fundamentals of democratic control are embedded in the Constitution and additional legislative acts that determine the responsibility of armed forces.

Participation of the National Armed Forces in international operations is possible only in accordance with political decisions of the Parliament or/and Government or in special cases defined by law, by the Minister of Defence. The constitutional and legal framework provides transparency and clear division of power between the President, the Parliament and the Government including Minister of Defence.

The civilian Minister of Defence symbolises and executes the democratic control over the National Armed Forces. The Minister of Defence is politically responsible to the Parliament. The Commander of the National Armed Forces is directly subordinated to the Minister of Defence. The Commander of the National Armed Forces, in accordance with the Minister's directives, executes the operational command over the National Armed Forces.

The division of responsibilities is clarified in the Law on National Security and in the Law on the National Armed Forces.

Article 19 of the Law on the National Armed Forces regulates the civilian control over the National Armed Forces, and determines the competence and control of the Defence Minister, State Audit Office, the Government, State President and the Parliament over the armed forces. The Commander of the National Armed Forces carries out the internal control over the forces.

(ii) paramilitary forces

In the territory of the Republic of Latvia currently there are no forces defined as paramilitary forces.

(iii) internal security forces

The Law on the National Armed Forces defines that tasks of the Military Police are to perform special operations in interests of state defence and security, to ensure protection of the highest state officials (also foreign). The greatest role in internal security is played by the land forces who participate in counter-terrorism activities etc. However, units of the National Armed Forces have certain tasks concerning internal security.

The Law on National Security defines that the Constitution Protection Bureau, the Security Police and the Military Intelligence and Security Service are internal security authorities and their activities are governed by special laws and regulations.

(iv) intelligence services

The national security system contains 3 separate intelligence services - the Constitution Protection Bureau, the Military Intelligence and Security Service and the Security Police. The Military Intelligence and Security Service is a state security authority under the supervision of the Ministry of Defence. The Security Police is under the supervision of the Ministry of Interior. The Constitution Protection Bureau is supervised by the Cabinet of Ministers and the supervision is carried out by the Ministry of Justice.

The National Security Council controls all these services. The National Security Commission of the Parliament provides parliamentary control over the State Security services.

(v) police

The legal basis for the police activities is provided by the Constitution, the Law on National Security Institutions, the Law on Police, the Law on Operational Acts, other laws and internal regulations, as well as international treaties regulating the protection of the national security and economic sovereignty.

According to Article 38 of the Law on Police, the Government, the Minister of the Interior and local authorities control the activities of the police within their competence.

2.2 How is the fulfilment of these procedures ensured, and which constitutionally established authorities/institutions are responsible for exercising these procedures?

Please refer to the information provided to question 2.1 in Section II.

2.3 What are the roles and missions of military, paramilitary and security forces, and how does your State control that such forces act solely within the constitutional framework?

(i) military forces

The Law on the National Armed Forces, Chapter II, Article 6, is regulating the tasks of the National Armed Forces.

(1) The main tasks of the National Armed Forces are the following:

- to ensure the inviolability of the land territory, the water aquatorium and the airspace of the State;
- to participate in international military operations according to the procedures specified in the law and international agreements; and
- to participate in the prevention of situations that constitute a threat to the State according to the procedures specified in regulatory enactments.

(2) The units (sub-units) of the NAF may become involved in the performance of other tasks not stipulated this Law but only by an order of the Cabinet of Ministers.

Participation of the military personnel in international operations is regulated by the Law on the Participation of the National Armed Forces of Latvia in the International Operations.

The Law on the Participation of the National Armed Forces of Latvia in the International Operations stipulates that units of the National Armed Forces participate in international operations within the mandate of the United Nations or other international organizations or according to the international agreements binding to the Republic of Latvia and according to the laws of the Republic of Latvia, as well as according to decisions on the participation of National Armed Forces in international operations made by the Saeima, the Cabinet of Ministers or, in the special cases defined by law, by the Minister of Defence.

Article 5 of the Law on the Participation of the National Armed Forces of Latvia in the International Operations provides that in case of a demand from a foreign country the Minister of Defence may decide on the participation of individual specially trained units of the National Armed Forces in international rescue operations and international humanitarian operations in NATO or EU member states.

The Minister of Defence controls the execution of the above mentioned tasks and missions by the NAF. The Ministry has assisting structures to ensure the legality of actions of the National Armed Forces – the Inspector General in the Ministry of Defence and National Armed Forces. There is also the Military Police subordinated to the Commander of National Armed Forces.

(ii) paramilitary forces

Not applicable.

(iii) security forces

The Law on National Security defines that the Constitution Protection Bureau, the Military Intelligence and Security Service and the Security Police are internal security authorities and their activities are governed by special laws.

3. Procedures related to different forces personnel

3.1 What kind of procedures for recruitment and call-up of personnel for service in your military, paramilitary and internal security forces does your State have?

(i) military

In peacetime, the personnel of the Latvian National Armed Forces (LNAF) shall be formed by professional service soldiers, the National Guards, civilian employees and reserve soldiers inducted for training.

As of January 2007 Latvia has a volunteer military service system. Professional service soldiers fulfil service in accordance with a contract. A uniform course of military service is determined by Military Service Law (MSL). Civilian employees perform a specific job (work) on the basis of an employment contract in units (sub-units) in civil positions of staff in accordance with regulatory enactments regulating employment legal relationships.

In accordance with the MSL a soldier is a Latvian citizen who performs active service and has been awarded a military rank. Therefore MSL sets out the principle of equality without seeking to differentiate soldiers according to their gender. MSL also requires those regulatory provisions of the employment relationship which intend the prohibition against unequal treatment to be applied to soldiers, including the prohibition to discriminate persons due to their gender. Moreover, according to MSL those Latvian citizens- women who have attained the age of 18 years can also join the reserve service if they meet the requirements and indicate their willingness or have completed special military training course or training in the National Guard.

(ii) paramilitary forces

Latvia has no paramilitary forces.

(iii) security forces

3.3 What are the legal and administrative procedures to protect the rights of all forces personnel as well as conscripts?

The principles of gender equality are enshrined in the Constitution of the Republic of Latvia which requires all persons within Latvia to be equal before the law and the courts and human rights shall be implemented without any discrimination.

The same principles also provides the Labour Law – everyone has an equal right to work, to fair, safe and healthy working conditions, as well as to fair work remuneration. This right shall be ensured without any direct or indirect discrimination – irrespective of a person's race, skin colour, gender, age, disability, religious, political or other conviction, ethnic or social origin, property or marital status, sexual orientation or other circumstances.

MSL provides that regulatory enactments regulating employment legal relationships shall not apply to a soldier, except for provisions governing the prohibition of differential.

A soldier in LNAF is under the protection of the State. His or her life, freedom, honour and dignity are protected by law. A soldier has the right to be a member of such public organisations, which do not have a political nature, as well as to establish public organisations for soldiers and participate in other non-political activities if such activities do not interfere with the performance of service duties.

Soldiers have the right to nominate a representative in each unit from amongst their number to protect the interests of soldiers and to solve practical issues in relationships with the unit commander (superior officer) and higher officials. The representative of soldiers shall exercise his or her powers in accordance with the procedures determined by the Minister for Defence.

A soldier has the right to appeal the decisions of officials taken in respect of him or her to a court if such decisions restrict his or her rights or infringe upon his or her honour and dignity without grounds and if he or she has utilised all means to dispute the decision in accordance with subordination procedures to higher officials, including the Minister for Defence. Procedures for submission and examination of service complaints shall be prescribed by the Military Interior Service Regulations.

Soldiers are prohibited from combining the performance of military service with another position or work not permitted by law, being a representative of another person in matters related to a unit (institution) in which he or she holds a position and taking part, personally or through the intermediation of another person, in transactions, upon the entering into or the fulfilment of which soldiers may unlawfully utilise their service position or come into a conflict of interest.

A soldier has no right to refuse to perform military service on religious grounds, and to utilise his or her service position to impose his or her religious conviction on others. A soldier's private property and its administration shall not be an obstacle or impediment to the performance of military service or to the transfer of the soldier from one unit to another.

Professional service soldier's remuneration, as remuneration for officials (employees) of State and local government authorities, are governed by the Law On Remuneration of Officials and Employees of State and Self-government Authorities. The amount of monthly salary for soldiers shall be determined in accordance with the service rank and term of service.

A soldier shall receive special additional payments, regulated by the Cabinet, for participation in international operations, for the service tasks associated with an increased risk to health (life), for specific (hard) conditions of service.

4. Implementation of other political norms, principles, decisions and international humanitarian law

IHL aspects are included in all career training programs of the LNAF and in training programs for soldiers before the deployment to NATO operations.

4.2 What has been done to ensure that armed forces personnel are aware of being individually accountable under national and international law for their actions?

According to MSL each soldier shall be personally liable for the observance of military discipline. Violations committed by a soldier shall be examined in accordance with the procedures set out in law, Soldier Military Discipline Regulations and other regulatory enactments.

4.3 How does your State ensure that armed forces are not used to limit the peaceful and lawful exercise of human and civil rights by persons as individuals or as representatives of groups nor to deprive them of national, religious, cultural, linguistic or ethnic identity?

Please refer to the information provided to questions 2.1 and 2.3 in Section II.

4.4 What has been done to provide for the individual service member's exercise of his or her civil rights and how does your State ensure that the country's armed forces are politically neutral?
