

Organization for Security and Co-operation in Europe
Office in Baku

International Community Policing Conference

10 – 11 June 2010

Baku, Azerbaijan

AGENDA

"How do the police identify and deliver high-quality services to the community?"

This question is the heart of the concept of community policing and lays the foundation for a progressive policing philosophy. Numerous former Soviet Union countries recognized community policing as an essential step to reform police services in their society, because it aims at improving communication and cooperation between the police and citizens and therefore develops citizens' trust in the police as a state institution. This causal connection is the essential and advancing element of the comprehensive process of internal democratization and political and social stabilization of the countries in the region.

This process has started in the Republic of Azerbaijan with the final objective of leveling up of security, to mutual benefit and contentment of both the police and citizens, eventually also leading to a higher degree of security in the country.

For several years, through its Police Assistance Program, the OSCE Office in Baku is supporting the Ministry of Internal Affairs in its efforts to spread the philosophy of community policing and building police-public partnerships all over the country.

This international conference aims at strengthening capacities of the Azerbaijani police service through the exchange of experiences and best practices with international experts.
