Section I: Inter-State elements

1. Account of measures to prevent and combat terrorism

1.1 To which agreements and arrangements (universal, regional, subregional and bilateral) related to preventing and combating terrorism is your State a party?

Austria has signed, ratified and implemented all thirteen UN counter-terrorism Conventions. Austria has signed and ratified all relevant UN counter-terrorism instruments except for the 2010 Convention on the Suppression of Unlawful Acts Relating to International Civil Aviation and the 2010 Protocol Supplementary to the Convention for the Unlawful Seizure of Aircraft.

Austria is party to the Council of Europe's Convention on Extradition of 1957, the second additional protocol thereto, and to the European Convention on the Suppression of Terrorism. It also signed the Protocol to the European Convention on the Suppression of Terrorism.

In May 2005 Austria signed the Council of Europe's Convention on the Prevention of Terrorism. After last years ratification the Convention entered into force on 1 April 2010.

In the relations between the Member States of the EU, extradition ("surrender") with regard to terrorist activities takes place on the basis of Council Framework Decision 2002/584/JHA of 13 June 2002 on the European Arrest Warrant and the surrender procedures between Member States which entered into force 7 August 2002.

The EU Council Framework Decision 2002/475/JHA of 13 June 2004 on combating terrorism entered into force 22 June 2002.

The EU Council Framework Decision 2008/919/JHA of 28 November 2008 amending Framework Decision 2002/475/JHA on combating terrorism entered into force on 9 December 2008. European Union Member States are obliged to implement the Council Framework Decision by 9 December 2010.

Concerning sub-regional initiatives, Austria, Belgium, Luxemburg, the Netherlands, Germany, France and Spain signed a Treaty on strengthening transnational cooperation, especially in countering terrorism, organized crime and illegal migration, on 27 May 2005 in the German city of Prüm. The Treaty entered into force between Austria, Germany and Spain in November 2006 and meanwhile has 14 European states as signatories.

In addition, the law on police cooperation and the EU-police cooperation law are relevant in this context, since they regulate the cooperation between different Austrian security authorities and the cooperation with security authorities in EU member states, with EUROPOL as well as other states.

1.2 What national legislation has been adopted in your State to implement the above-mentioned agreements and arrangements?

Section 278b § 3 of the Austrian Criminal Code (CC) defines a terrorist association as a union of more than two people, where no particular organisation or hierarchy is required, for a longer time period aiming at the commitment of terrorist offences listed in sec 278c CC by one or more members of the association. According to § 1 leg cit the leader of a terrorist association is punishable by a deprivation of liberty from five up to 15 years, the leader of such an association which confines itself to threaten with terrorist offences is punishable by a deprivation of liberty from one up to ten years. According to § 2 leg cit the participation in a terrorist association is punishable by a deprivation of liberty from one up to ten years.

Sec 278c CC lists offences;

if the offence is appropriate to cause a severe interference with the public life or such an interference for a longer time or to cause a severe damage to the economic life being committed with the intent to intimidate people in a serious manner or to force public authorities or an international FATF/ME(2009)2 281 organization to an action, permission or omission or to convulse or destroy the basic political, constitutional, economic or social structures of a state or an international organization) which are to be qualified as terrorist offences when being committed with terrorist intention.

According to § 2 leg cit those offences shall be punished pursuant to the law applicable to the offence mentioned there and the maximum penalty is to be raised by half of the penalty being prescribed respectively but shall not exceed 20 years. According to § 3 leg cit offences are not qualified as terrorist offences insofar as the offence is directed to the establishment or reestablishment of a democratic and constitutional order or the exercise or observation of human rights. In such a case provisions of the Criminal Code not related to terrorism have to be followed.

According to sec 278d of the Criminal Code financing of terrorism to provide or collect assets of property in order to be used to commit one of the listed offences;

1. of a hijacking (sect. 185) or an intentional danger to the safety of aviation (sect. 186),

8. of a criminal offence which shall cause the death or a grievous bodily injury of a civil person or another person not being actively involved in the hostilities of an armed conflict if this act is aimed by its nature and its circumstances at threatening a group of the population or forcing a government or an international organization to an action or omission, is punishable by deprivation of liberty from one to five years.

The Act on reform of the Austrian Criminal Code of Procedure (CCP) Federal Gazette Nr I 19/2004 entered into force 1 January 2008 and provided for a reform of the criminal proceeding in regard to the pre-trial investigation phase. Sec 110 CCP provides for the freezing of assets within the disposition of a terrorist group as well as the freezing of funds collected or provided for the financing of terrorist acts. Therefore, the freezing of assets is admissible if measures according to sec 20 Criminal Code confiscations of profits, 20b forfeiture CC or 26 confiscations CC need to be secured.

Special investigating measures may be admissible in order to facilitate investigation of terrorist offences. According to sec 131 § 2 CCP covered investigation may be conducted for a longer time period if the detection or prevention of a criminal association (sec 278 CC), criminal organisation (sec 278a CC) or terrorist association (sec 278b CC) would be otherwise significantly hampered. According to sec 135 § 3 CCP the surveillance of messages is amongst others admissible in order to detect or prevent offences in connection with a criminal or terrorist association or criminal organisation if otherwise the investigation would be significantly hampered. According to sec 136 CCP optical and acoustic surveillance of persons is amongst others admissible if clarifying a crime to be punished with a prison sentence exceeding 10 years or the crimes of forming a criminal organisation or terrorist association (sec 278a and 278b CC) or of criminal acts planned or committed in connection with such an organisation or association would otherwise be futile or significantly hampered and either the person to be kept under surveillance him/herself is urgently suspicious of committing the aforementioned crime or it can be assumed that the person urgently suspicious of committing an aforementioned crime will get in contact with the person kept under surveillance. Public safety must be in serious danger if such a measure is to be used for preventive purposes. Furthermore, according to sec 141 § 3 CCP the comparison of data (including data which may be requested by court, public prosecution or the criminal police as well as data on persons who received goods or services from specific companies or who are members of organisations of private law or legal entities of private or public law) – whereby sensitive data must not be used.

In order to protect the economy including the financial sector and to prevent money laundering, all occupational groups which could be possible targets for money launderers are within the scope of our anti-money-laundering and combating the financing of terrorism (AML/CFT) system and are therefore also subject to reporting requirements. In accordance with the Financial Action Task Force (FATF), the entire financial sector (all credit and financial institutions, all life insurance companies and all investment services providers), lawyers, notaries, auditors, external accountants, tax advisors, casinos, real estate agents, and all dealers where cash payments in an amount of 15.000 € or more are made are obliged to comply with all AML/CFT obligations (including customer due diligence, reporting obligations, identifying the beneficial owner etc.) and are supervised or monitored for compliance.

The Austrian Financial Investigation Unit (AFIU) was established in 1994 within the Austrian Ministry of the Interior, and has meanwhile become part of the "Bundeskriminalamt Österreich" (Criminal Intelligence Service Austria) and is primarily responsible for money laundering offences.

The AFIU is a law enforcement authority, capable of conducting all sorts of investigations, such as surveillance, interrogations, wire-tapping, search of premises, issuing warrants of arrest, etc. In case of reasonable suspicion, the reporting institutions have to provide the AFIU, upon demand, with all information required to investigate and prosecute money laundering and terrorist financing.

Section 178d of the Austrian Penal Code criminalises “financing of terrorism” and subjects it to up to 5 years in jail. Section 110 of the Austrian Code of Criminal Procedure provides for the freezing of assets within the disposition of a terrorist group as well as the freezing of funds collected or provided for the financing of terrorist acts.

Austria’s extradition practice is based on the Federal Extradition and Mutual Legal Assistance Act (Bundesgesetz für Auslieferung und Rechtshilfe) of 4 December 1979 (Federal Law Gazette No. 529/1979), which allows for the extradition of suspected or convicted terrorists on the basis of reciprocity even in the absence of an applicable treaty.

In the relations between the Member States of the EU, extradition (“surrender”) with regard to terrorist activities takes place on the basis of Sections 2 – 38 of the Austrian Act on Judicial Cooperation in Criminal Matters with the Member States of the EU (EU-JZG)

(Federal Law Gazette I nr. 36/2004 in the versions Federal Law Gazette I nr. 164/2004, 38/2007 and 112/2007), which implements Council Framework Decision 2002/584/JHA of 13 June 2002 on the European Arrest Warrant and the surrender procedures between Member States into Austrian law.

Besides the general provisions in the Austrian Criminal Code criminalising offences in particular sec 278b, 278c and 278d of the Austrian Criminal Code shall be mentioned, which provide for the criminalisation of the leading of and participation in a terrorist association, state terrorist criminal offences and the financing of terrorism. The amendment of the Criminal Code 2002 (Federal Law Gazette I Nr 2002/134) incorporated these provisions into the Criminal Code.

Section 20 § 3 (confiscation of profits) of the Austrian Criminal Code provides for the possibility of condemnation to payment of an amount of money fixed by court corresponding to economic benefits of a perpetrator which were gained during the period of their membership in a criminal organisation (sec 278a CC) or in a terrorist group (sec 278b CC), if there is reasonable suspicion that these profits derive from offences and their legal acquisition cannot be made credible. Sec 20b (forfeiture) CC provides for the forfeiture of property being at the disposal of a criminal organisation or a terrorist group or which has been provided or collected as a means for financing terrorism .

In order to meet the obligations of the Council of Europe Convention on the Prevention of Terrorism and of the Framework Decision 2008/919/JHA to amend the Framework Decision 2002/457/JI sec 278e on training for terrorist purposes was introduced into the Austrian Criminal Code.

For the purpose of ensuring that immigrants and asylum seekers have not engaged in terrorist activities, Austria relies on the Aliens Police Act (Fremdenpolizeigesetz) of 2005 (Federal Law Gazette I No. 2005/100) and on a special screening process for nationals of certain countries. The Aliens Police Act regulates the entry, stay and residence of foreigners. It does not directly list terrorist offences. Instead, it includes the provision of posing a threat to public order and safety, which under § 21 will lead to the denial of a visa and under § 60, entails a ban on residence. In accordance with the relevant UN resolutions and other international legal instruments, the Austrian authorities may issue visas for nationals of certain states only upon explicit authorization by the Ministry of the Interior. These individuals are subject to additional scrutiny when entering Austrian territory.

1.3 What are the roles and missions of military, paramilitary and security forces and the police in preventing and combating terrorism in your State?

The tasks of the Federal Armed Forces are defined within the Federal Constitutional Law (Article 79). According to this provision the Federal Armed Forces' first and foremost task is the country's military defence. Other tasks laid down in the Constitution include the so-called "assistance missions" (Assistenzeinsätze), which consist in "the protection of the constitutionally established institutions and their capacity to operate as well as the population's democratic freedoms", "the maintenance of order and security inside the country in general" and "assistance in the case of natural catastrophes and disasters of exceptional magnitude". In general, these tasks may only be fulfilled in assistance and upon request of a civil authority. Due to this necessary request by the competent civil authority the Federal Armed Forces have only a very limited role in preventing and combating terrorism.

Based on the security police law, the Federal Ministry of the Interior and its Federal Agency for State Protection and Counter Terrorism (Bundesamt für Verfassungsschutz und Terrorismusbekämpfung/BVT) assess threats to public safety and have to counter threats and preventatively secure legal interests. Protection of constitutional institutions and ensuring their capacity to function is one priority.

In order to act preventatively, the security agencies are in charge of monitoring groups and communities regarding their structures in place and developments in their surrounding. They are also in charge of assessing whether a group constitutes a major threat to public security. The security police law provides for advanced threat analysis. In this context, security agencies have authorized competences such as concealed investigations, the (concealed) use of image recording devices, phonographs and observation. In general, security agencies are tasked to carry out the threat analysis.

1.4 Provide any additional relevant information on national efforts to prevent and combat terrorism, e.g., those pertaining inter alia to:

— Financing of terrorism;

Money or value transfer services are regulated. Banking businesses in Austria require a banking licence. Thus, providers of such services are subject to the full set of AML/CFT legislation applicable to credit and financial institutions as mentioned above.

The obligations under FATF Special Recommendation VII, which was developed with the objective of preventing terrorists and other criminals from having unfettered access to wire transfers for moving their funds was implemented through Regulation (EC) No. 1781/2006, which is directly applicable in all EU Member States and requires financial institutions to ensure that all wire transfers are accompanied by "complete information on the payer".

The obligation to freeze funds or other assets under UNSCR 1267 (1999) has been implemented through Council Regulation (EC) No. 881/2002, which is directly applicable to EU Member States. The obligations under UNSCR 1373 (2001) have been implemented through Council Regulation (EC) No. 2580/2001, which is likewise directly applicable to EU Member States, and through a national law called "Foreign Exchange Act" ("Devisengesetz").

In August 2006, the Federal Agency for State Protection and Counter Terrorism (BVT) of the Federal Ministry of the Interior installed a special group that exclusively deals with countering terrorism financing. This group works closely with the Austrian Financial Intelligence Unit. On 1 January 2008, the third EU Directive on Money Laundering was implemented into national legislation, including important provisions on the prevention of terrorism financing. In training modules for the private sector, reference is always made to the Austrian legal framework as well as to the guidelines issued by the Financial Action Task Force (FATF).

In addition to existing relevant provisions of the Criminal Code, the law on governing banking institutions and the law on surveillance of insurance institutions, in 2010 the law on sanctions entered into force. This law regulates the freezing of assets in connection with UN- or EU-sanctions. The Federal Ministry of the Interior and the BVT analyse different methods of financing of terrorism (such as NPO's, cash courier etc.) and act in cases of requests from the AFIU. There exists a well-established cooperation with the compliance departments of financial institutions seated in Austria. Based on a judicial request this allows for access to information on financial transactions.

— Border controls;

In accordance with the Schengen Agreement, border controls are carried out according to the regulation EG Nr. 562/2006 of the European Parliament and of the Council of the European Union from 15 March 2006 on the Community Code on the rules governing the movement of persons across borders (Schengener Grenzkodex – Schengen Borders Code).

The elimination of the border control as control filter is compensated by the police through other means in mobile form (compensatory measures). These measures are carried out in the entire federal territory and at the major traffic routes (road and railway) in particular.

Within the framework of Frontex Joint Operations, temporary “guest officers” from other EU Member States are installed in support to the Austrian border control officers. This mechanism for exchange of information has proven very valuable. The European External Border Agency Frontex coordinates the cooperation of the individual EU Member States at the EU external borders and arranges trainings for the national border security officers.

In some countries, Austria has installed document advisors with Austrian Embassies and/or Consulates as well as at airports in order to support the staff of airlines in document screening and verification of individuals.

Further legal regulations – besides the Schengen Borders Code – for the border control are „Regulation (EC) No 810/2009 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 13 July 2009 establishing a Community Code on Visas (Visa Code)“, the regulation (EC) No. 767/2008 of the European Parliament and of the Council of the European Union from 9 July 2008 regarding the Visa Information System (VIS) and the data exchange between the member states on visa for a short-term entry (VIS-VO). National regulations that are considered as well are the security police law, the law on border control, the aliens' police law 2005, the regulation on the enforcement for aliens' police, the law on police cooperation and appropriate bilateral agreements.

Austria has initiated bilateral agreements with neighbouring countries with regard to police cooperation, which provide for the establishment of police cooperation centres. Furthermore, there is cross-border cooperation in the fields of security police, criminal and border police.

In order to detect the physical cross-border transportation of currency and bearer negotiable instruments that are related to money laundering or terrorist financing, Austria applies Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005 by which a declaration system at the external border of the European Union is required concerning bearer negotiable instruments or currency with a threshold of 10.000 € or more.

— Travel document security

On 16 June 2006 Austria started issuing electronic passports with an integrated chip. The biographic data and the picture of the passport holder were printed in the passport booklet and securely stored on the chip according to ICAO Doc 9303. Passports for children under the age of 12 years didn't have an integrated chip at the beginning.

On 28 August 2006 Austria also switched to electronic passports for diplomatic, service and alien's passports as well as for "travel documents according to the convention of 28 July 1951".

On 26 October, 2006 Austria also offered children's passports with chips additionally to the already existing children passports without a chip (optional under the age of 12 years).

Since 30 March 2009 Austria is issuing electronic passports with two fingerprints (2nd biometric identifier) stored on the chip as images according to ICAO Doc 9303. Exemption: Persons under the age of 12 years and persons who are physically unable to enrol fingerprints.

Since 15 June 2010 passports for children under the age of 12 years with an integrated chip are mandatory.

Austrian ID cards are currently not equipped with an electronic chip but otherwise fulfil the relevant ICAO specifications. The new residence permit card will have a contactless chip according to the relevant EU standards and will have the face and two fingerprints stored on the chip as a biometric identifier.

All Documents are personalized in the secure facility of the Austrian State Printing House and shipped directly from there. It falls under the responsibility of the Ministry of the Interior to make sure that these processes are secure, that they have a legal framework and that they are improved constantly. The Austrian State Printing House is closely involved in the development of secure documents on the ICAO and the EU level to ensure maximum standard compliance.

Austria became a PKD Member on 31 December 2010; the system is planned to become operational in mid-2012.

Lost and stolen passports are reported to national and international databases, e.g. the INTERPOL database.

Austria prepares a national database, where personal data of all inhabitants of Austria are stored. This will be an addition to the already existing databases for id-documents and citizens home addresses.

— Container and supply chain security

The Federal Ministry of the Interior and the BVT offer specific transport surveillance (mostly for trucks) services. In the context of terrorism no specific threats to transport security have been detected so far.

— Security of radioactive sources;

The Federal Law for a Nonnuclear Austria entered into force on 14 August 1999. This law stipulates that it is prohibited to produce, stock, transport, test or use nuclear weapons. Likewise it's prohibited to build facilities with the aim of production of energy through nuclear fission. Furthermore, Austria has ratified the Agreement on physical protection of nuclear material. In the Federal Law of the establishment of a security control system, the security of nuclear material and facilities and the export control to guarantee peaceful utilization of nuclear energy implemented adequate legal regulations for the security of nuclear material. The law on the protection against radiation as well as the Criminal Code contain additional relevant provisions.

— Use of the Internet and other information networks for terrorist purposes;

The BMI/BVT generates information through open sources analysis and use of specific data bases. It participates in international projects that serve the monitoring and the exchange of experiences in this field. For example the Programme „Check the Web“ by EUROPOL.

— Legal co-operation including extradition;

The security police law entitles the security agencies to demand information from departments of municipalities and other statutory corporations which is needed for certain missions.

Territorial cooperation:

The article 22 of the Federal Constitution Law obliges all agencies of the government, the Länder and the municipalities to mutual administrative assistance within their constitutional sphere of action.

The security police law entitles the security agencies to demand information from departments of the municipalities and other statutory corporations which is needed for certain missions.

International co-operation:

The international police co-operation operates on the basis of the police cooperation law and serves the purpose of security police, criminal police, travel documents unit, aliens' police and border control. The international police cooperation contains the international administrative assistance and the intervention of security agencies and their departments abroad as well as foreign security agencies and their departments on the federal territory. International administrative assistance involves security agencies and security organisations.

— Safe havens and shelter to terrorists and terrorist organizations.

In the procedure of granting the right of asylum, the person applying for asylum should be checked on a terroristic background. Of course it cannot be ruled out that criminals or terrorist use such procedures and gain asylum. Until now such cases have not emerged. The Federal Ministry of the Interior and the BVT cooperate closely with other ministries and institutions in order to prevent terrorist groups from spreading their ideological messages.

2. Stationing of armed forces on foreign territory

- 2.1 Provide information on stationing of your States armed forces on the territory of other participating States in accordance with freely negotiated agreements as well as in accordance with international law.

Any deployment of Austrian troops abroad is regulated by the “Federal Constitutional Law on Cooperation and Solidarity in Deploying Units and Individuals Abroad”, adopted in 1997. According to its provisions, the possibility of deploying military (as well as civilian) personnel abroad is limited to peace operations in the framework of an international organisation, measures of humanitarian assistance (including disaster relief), search and rescue missions and training purposes.

Decisions on deployments in the framework of peace operations have to be taken unanimously by the Council of Ministers (the Federal Government) and need to be approved, before the planned deployment actually takes place, by a majority decision of the Main Committee of Parliament (“Hauptausschuß des Nationalrats”). Simplified procedures of decision and approval apply to humanitarian missions, search and rescue operations and training activities. The law also specifically mentions that decisions on all deployments must take into account Austria’s obligations under international law as well as the principles of the UN Charter and the Helsinki Final Act.”

Since 1995 Austria has been participating in NATO’s Partnership for Peace programme. In this context, Austria has also signed the „Agreement among the States Parties to the North Atlantic Treaty and the other States Participating in the Partnership for Peace regarding the Status of their Forces“(PfP-SOFA), which entered into force on 2 September 1998 (Federal Law Gazette, Vol. III, No. 136/1998). The agreement forms the basis for the legal status of troops from partner countries sent to another partner country to engage in PfP activities. Austria has also signed a number of bi- and multilateral agreements with other states, which regulate, among others, the legal status of troops abroad.

3. Implementation of other international commitments related to the Code of Conduct

- 3.1 Provide information on how your State ensures that commitments in the field of arms control, disarmament and confidence- and security-building as an element of indivisible security are implemented in good faith.

Austria has been a longstanding advocate for arms control, disarmament and confidence- and security-building, and attaches particular importance to the implementation of such commitments by as many states as possible. It consequently seeks to further this aim in bi- and multilateral fora. Numerous initiatives have been undertaken in this regard.

In the field of conventional weapons Austria is currently playing an active role in the promotion of the Convention on Cluster Munitions, which entered into force on 1 August 2010. With currently 56 ratifications, Austria supports universalisation efforts of this Convention.

- 3.2 Provide information on how your State pursues arms control, disarmament and confidence- and security-building measures with a view to enhancing security and stability in the OSCE area.

Arms control, disarmament and confidence-building are key elements to enhancing security and stability in the OSCE area and beyond. To that effect Austria has launched numerous initiatives aimed at the universalisation of international treaties in different fields.

Austria has been a longstanding advocate of nuclear disarmament and prevention of the proliferation of nuclear weapons. An early entry into force of the Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty (CTBT) is a top priority for Austria and would be an important confidence- and security-building measure which could facilitate reductions in strategic and non-strategic nuclear weapons as well as changes of strategic doctrines. Austria is especially dedicated to increase the number of States adhering to the CTBT.

Austria continues its efforts against Anti-Personal Mines (APM) by seeking to promote the universality of the Ottawa-Convention. Since 1999 Austria has provided considerable financial means for demining projects. South Eastern Europe, African regions and Afghanistan have been priority regions for such projects.

As a member of the Executive Council of the Chemical Weapons Convention (CWC) in the period from 2008 to 2010 Austria has paid particular attention to extending the circle of state parties and to speed up the implementation of the Convention by its signatories.

Section II: Intra-State elements

1. National planning and decision-making process

- 1.1 What is the national planning and decision-making process in determining/approving military posture and defence expenditures in your State?

The Federal President is the Commander-in-chief of the Austrian Armed Forces (AAF, Art. 80 Federal Constitutional law). The authority to dispose the AAF is divided between the Federal President and the Minister of Defence and Sports. The power of order over the AAF is given to the Minister of Defence and Sports.

According to the Austrian defence constitution, the AAF are part of the Austrian public administration. The constitutional regulations concerning public administration thus also apply to the AAF (Principle of rule of law).

Defence related legislation is the responsibility of the Federal State. Parliament discusses defence issues at its National Defence Committee, a special parliamentary body with competence for examining legislative proposals in the defence sector, and at plenary meetings.

Moreover, Parliament exercises political control over governmental action. It addresses queries concerning governmental action (i.e. the action of each member of government and of the public institutions under their authority) to government or to individual ministers. Parliament expresses itself on how to conduct governmental action by means of a resolution.

Furthermore, Parliament may establish investigating committees to conduct inquiries on governmental action. The two military intelligence services are subject to parliamentary control within the Permanent Subcommittee of the National Defence Committee mentioned above.

The main objective of the Austrian Defence Policy is to ensure the military capabilities for maintaining Austria's sovereignty and, at upon request of civil authorities, to protect the Austrian constitutional institutions, its critical infrastructure and population. For tasks inside Austria at least 10.000 soldiers, an equivalent of about 2 brigades, are available at all times and at least 1.000 soldiers should be available for international crisis management operations. These figures are currently under political consideration.

On 20 January 2011 the Minister of Defence and Sports signed a new guideline for the defence planning process. This guideline updates the 2004 guideline and complements a guideline signed in 2010, detailing the procurement process. The following planning documents detail the realisation of the transformation of the AAF:

- The Military Strategic Concept 2006 defining the overall objectives and framework for the AAF 2010 is still valid, but will have to be revised due to the change in financial and personnel resources provided to the MoDS.
- The Situation Report 2006 is being superseded by the Situation Report 2009, signed by the CHODS to give an estimate of the achievement of the objectives set for the end of 2009.
- The Planning Guidance 2008-2013 (issued in 2008) is being superseded by the Planning Guidance 2011-2016, signed in November 2010 by the CHODS to define the development of the respective plans and programs by the MoDS within the given budgetary and personnel framework.
- On the basis of the Planning Guidance 2011-2016, the Armed Forces Plan 2011-2016 (issuance foreseen by mid 2011) will contain the further development of the AAF in detail. The Armed Forces Plan and the detailed realisation programmes (the latter have been issued at the end of 2010) will serve as basis for the further realisation.
- The "Guideline on the Implementation of the Contribution of the AAF to the Consolidation of the Federal Budget", published in December 2010, details the changes for the further development of the AAF.
- All the new documents take into account the results of the Advisory Evaluation Committee on the implementation of the transformation to the AAF 2010, which met in 2009/2010.

The budget for 2011 was agreed by the end of December 2010. The parliament's resolution of the budget 2012 is scheduled for October 2011, that of the budget 2013 within the year 2012. The budgetary framework for defence and sports for 2011 – 2014 was approved by the parliament in June 2010 in a total sum (part for Directorate General V – Sports is included).

A prediction for the development of the base defence budgets (sports excluded) till 2014 can be estimated (2012 approx. € 2.030 millions, 2013 approx. € 2.040 millions and 2014 approx. € 2.050 millions). The budgetary framework for defence and sports 2012 – 2015 will be decided in April 2011 also in a total sum. The framework might foresee further reductions of the defence budget. The development of the ratio between the defence budget (exclusive pensions) and GDP is as follows (in million €):

GDP	283.090	274.320	283.160	293.870
Budget	2.171	2.006	2.122	2.057
% GDP	0,77	0,73	0,75	0,70

* estimated, ** Source from GDP data WIFO, Statistics AUT

The consolidation of the public budget with the decrease of the defence budget has led to a declining of the ratio and a declining of the budget in real terms. Due to the acquisition of the EUROFIGHTER aircraft, the budgets for 2007 up to 2014 include the pay back rate for this system. Additional funding at the scale of approx. € 450 millions may become available from the sale of defence infrastructure to assist with the restructuring associated with AAF 2010 (ÖBH 2010) within the next 5 years; approx. € 165 millions have already been raised.

Austria continues to implement the recommendations of the AAF Reform Commission of 2010, which were noted by the respective national political fora as the basis for the further development of the AAF. The Commission's report acknowledged international crisis management operations as a main mission for the AAF and recommended the reorganisation of the armed forces and the adoption of a budget structure to ensure adequate procurement funds. The restructuring of the armed forces and the location of major commands was completed in 2010. Individual service and functional commands have been amalgamated to form a Joint Force Command supported by a Joint Service Support Command, responsible for logistics support. Air forces have also been reorganised under an Air Support Command and an Air Surveillance Command. The army structure continues to be mainly based on four brigades and nine Provincial Military Commands.

The main objective of the transformation to the AAF 2010 is the availability of appropriate national operational capabilities for a military contribution within multinational conflict prevention and crisis management across the full spectrum of EU Petersberg-operations with an Austrian led Framework Brigade. Structures are to be developed within the defined legal, personnel and material framework for missions abroad and have concurrently to ensure the fulfilment of national tasks with an equivalent of about two brigades at any time for assistance operations.

According to the recommendations of the AAF Reform Commission, the military-strategic aims are as follows:

- Actively contribute with military means to stabilize the strategic environment of Europe in order to prevent adverse effects of crises and conflicts within conflict prevention and multinational crisis management. In short terms this means the concentration of our efforts in South East Europe and in medium terms beyond that region.
- Actively contribute with military means to the implementation and enforcement of European interests, as defined by the European Security Strategy.

- At the same time ensure the military protection of the population and their existential basis within our territory.

1.2 How does your State ensure that its military capabilities take into account the legitimate security concerns of other States as well as the need to contribute to international security and stability?

Pursuant to section 7 § 1 of the Austrian Military Service Act 2001 the Federal Government determines fundamental issues concerning the organisation of the armed forces, armament, deployment and designation of troops. The financial resources provided for national defence are laid down in the Federal Finance Act.

In March 2011 the Federal Government agreed upon a new Security Strategy and submitted this governmental paper to the Parliament for further deliberations. This strategy takes into account the changes of, and makes reference to, the emerging security challenges and Austria's security environment after the enlargement of the European Union (EU) and NATO, the ratification of the EU Treaty of Lisbon, and to NATO's New Strategic Concept as well as to relevant UN concepts.

Austria's Security Policy is based on the Austrian constitution and its neutrality law, the pillars of the Charter of the United Nations, the Helsinki Final Act and the Common Security and Defence Policy of the EU. It is defined by the principles of comprehensive and preventive security, human security and European solidarity.

The sub-committee of Defence of the Parliament will discuss the consequences concerning the required whole-of-government concepts, structures, and instruments for Austria's security policy including the main tasks and core capabilities of the AAF. Results are to be expected by mid-2011.

Besides national tasks the future main challenges will be to cope with international crisis management and conflict prevention or disaster relief within the framework of the EU, NATO, UN or other international organizations.

To reach this aim and the necessary capabilities, this means the enhancement of the operational forces with rapid response capabilities, the creation of a slim and effective Command and Control-Structure and the built up of effective logistic and deployment capabilities.

Current defence planning 2011-2016 in regard to missions abroad is based on the ability

- to provide a command and control capability for brigade-sized forces for one year,
- to deploy on short notice and sustain for 6 months one Motorised Infantry Battalion with the necessary staff and combat service support elements, one Mechanized Infantry Coy, one Special Operations Forces Task Group Light, one CBRN Framework Coy, one General Support Engineer Coy, one Cargo Truck Coy, one Military Police Platoon, one Rotary Wing Medium Transport Detachment, one Medium Reconnaissance Coy, one EOD Platoon, one CIMIC Team, three Tactical PSYOPS Teams, one ISTAR HUMINT and Counter-Intelligence Team, one Military Observation Team, one Military Training Team, one Liaison and Reconnaissance Team for high intensity scenarios as well as humanitarian assistance,

- to deploy, and sustain indefinitely, one further Motorised Infantry Battalion based on professional soldiers and volunteer reserve soldiers for stabilisation and reconstruction operations in low intensity scenarios and
- to deploy, and sustain indefinitely, one further Infantry Battalion, based on professional soldiers and volunteer reserve soldiers for peacekeeping operations (a peacekeeping battalion is currently serving with UNDOF).

In addition, Austria will retain the capability to fulfil the national tasks (military air traffic control and to deploy the equivalent of two brigades for tasks within its borders).

AAF ambition on international operations will remain unchanged until 2016. During this period the currently available capabilities are being consolidated. Defence planning beyond 2016 on missions abroad is depending on the personnel and budgetary set-up and is under consideration.

In general, the number of units of the peacetime structure will basically remain the same, capabilities and strength of some units will be diminished due to budgetary and personnel constraints. The number of soldiers in Rapid Deployable Units (RDU) will be capped at 2.000 until 2016.

In addition to the national force planning, the developments and results from the force planning in multinational fora like in the EU (“Helsinki Headline Goal 2010”), the European Defence Agency (EDA; Capability Development Plan – CDP) as well as in NATO/PfP are taken into account.

Austria is Member of the UN, the OSCE, the EU and Partner of NATO in its Partnership for Peace Programme. Additionally, Austria co-operates closely with its neighbours and intends to further intensify these efforts within a regional setting. Austria interprets its neutrality in the context of its various memberships and obligations.

Austria sees a primary responsibility for global security within the framework of the United Nations. Missions abroad ought to be politically legitimised through a UN mandate, although the Austrian constitution would allow taking part in missions which are based on a mandate of an international organisation, the OSCE or on an EU decision.

The mutual assistance clause which was laid down in the EU Treaty of Lisbon and is based on Article 51 of the UN-Charter takes into account the specific character of the security and defence policy of Austria.

Austria’s security policy is based on the constitutional principle of permanent neutrality which is an integral part of its identity. However, Austria as host to the UN and the OSCE is involved in international, regional and sub-regional networks.

Two main regions of interest have been in the focus of Austria’s foreign and security policy over the last years, namely the Balkan region and the Black Sea Region. The first region is supported in its efforts to implement the European perspective, the latter to overcome internal and regional conflicts and to promote vital values for all entities.

Specifically in the context of military capability development, Austria is interested in elaborating formats and possibilities for enhanced co-operation, mainly in a regional context.

In the spirit of solidarity, Austria provides capabilities for adequate contributions to international crisis management operations in the framework of the UN, EU, NATO and OSCE, based on its constitution, relevant constitutional laws and the respective chapters of the Lisbon treaty, preferably with a UN mandate. In addition, Austria participates in different kinds of agreements, conventions and initiatives in the field of arms control, non-proliferation and confidence and security building measures in the framework of the EU, the UN and the OSCE.

2. Existing structures and processes

2.1 What are the constitutionally established procedures for ensuring democratic political control of military, paramilitary and internal security forces, intelligence services and the police?

Austria's constitution regarding the armed forces is characterised by a far-reaching integration into the administrative apparatus of the state. The armed forces are thus a complex organ of the public administration, which is shown not only by a systematic definition of its set-up and tasks under constitutional law, but also by the fact that it is subject to the command authority of some of the highest administrative organs. Being part of the public administration, the armed forces are also subject to the control mechanism established by constitutional law.

In accordance with the principles of a democratic state governed by the rule of law enshrined in the Austrian Federal Constitution, democratic political control of the security forces is entrusted above all to the following institutions;

- parliament (legislative prerogatives incl. adoption of the federal budget, control of the executive branch through instruments such as the approval of international treaties, interpellation of members of government, commissions of enquiry, no confidence motions)
- the ordinary judiciary (civilian and criminal courts)
- the Constitutional Court and the Administrative Court
- independent administrative tribunals
- the Public Audit Office
- the Ombudsman Board
- the Data Protection Commission

For the Federal Ministry of the Interior the civil control is supported by the Advisory Committee on Human Rights and the Federal Anti-Corruption Bureau.

- The task of the Advisory Committee on Human Rights, which was called into being by §§ 15a to 15c of the “Security Police Law” is to advise the Minister of the Interior regarding questions of ensuring respect of Human Rights as well as to support mainstreaming of Human Rights aspects in the activities of internal security authorities by surveillance and inspections. For example, the Advisory Committee on Human Rights conducts visits to detention facilities, identifies shortcomings and proposes concrete solutions.
- The Office for internal affairs (BIA) as an organisational unit which is independent and unbound to directives. It leads security police and criminal police investigations against “internal wrongdoers”. This means receipt and inspection of accusations and complaints against civil servants of the Federal Ministry of the Interior and subordinated departments that can be assigned to the field of malpractice in office (§§ 302-313 StGB). The BIA is also in charge of investigations regarding civil servants of other ministries and territorial authorities when these are performing tasks in the field of security management or criminal police. In particular cases the BIA is in charge of other similar affairs (e.g. investigations of other grave violation of the official duty such as sexual harassment through superior or colleagues). The BIA has furthermore established itself as specialised agency for the investigation of corruption cases in other areas. If required relevant investigations in other government departments, in magistrates of cities, in provinces and districts as well as in the private sector (keyword: "private sector corruption") are undertaken.

On 16 November 2001, a law on the formation of the National Security Council entered into force. This Council, chaired by the Federal Chancellor, must be heard in all fundamental matters of foreign, security and defence policy. It advises the Federal Government and the individual Federal Ministers. Its other members include the Vice-Chancellor, the Federal Minister for European and International Affairs, the Federal Minister of Defence and Sports, the Federal Minister of the Interior, the Federal Minister of Justice and representatives of the political parties. Moreover, several senior civil servants participate in the National Security Council as advisors: a representative from the President’s Office, a representative from the Presidency of the Governors of the “Länder”, the Secretary General for European and International Affairs, the Chief of Defence, the Director General for Public Security and respectively one civil servant appointed by the Federal Chancellor, the Vice-Chancellor, the Federal Minister for European and International Affairs and the Federal Minister of Defence and Sports.

The Ministry of Defence and Sports maintains two intelligence agencies. The “Heeres-Nachrichtenamt” is a strategic intelligence agency which procures information on regions, countries and organizations. The “Abwehramt” is a military intelligence agency which provides counterintelligence services for the Austrian Armed Forces. Its task is to gather and evaluate information about activities endangering or directed against the Austrian Armed Forces and military security, e.g. activities against military personnel, military secrets, military compounds and military goods.

For the purpose of reviewing the measures for the safeguard of constitutionally established agencies and their operative capacity, as well as for the purpose of reviewing intelligence measures to secure the country's military defence, the Austrian Constitution provides for two standing sub-committees of the Austrian Parliament.

The two standing sub-committees are entitled to request all relevant information and insight into relevant documents. This does not apply to information and documents whose disclosure would endanger national security or the safety of individuals. Section 57 of the Austrian Military Service Powers Act installs a representative for legal protection (Rechtsschutzbeauftragter), who is authorised to examine the lawfulness of measures of the intelligence agencies.

The Federal Agency for State Protection and Counter Terrorism (Bundesamt für Verfassungsschutz und Terrorismusbekämpfung/BVT), the intelligence agency of the Ministry of the Interior, maintains nine regional branches and is a civilian intelligence service and law enforcement agency under the authority of the Federal Ministry of the Interior. It is entrusted with competences in fields such as counter-terrorism, counter-espionage and non-proliferation. The Agency is also responsible for the personal protection of high ranking officials and the security of installations of international institutions in Austria.

2.2 How is the fulfilment of these procedures ensured, and which constitutionally established authorities/institutions are responsible for exercising these procedures?

The compliance with regulations through civil servants is regardless of the responsibility under criminal law, ensured through the public services law and disciplinary laws. A violation of official duties through a civil servant will be punished by disciplinary-judicial measures. The penalty depends on the severity of the violation of official duties and can lead to dismissal.

For contract agents there is the possibility of admonition as well as the possibility of termination of the service through suspension or dismissal for violation of official duties.

2.3 What are the roles and missions of military, paramilitary and security forces, and how does your State control that such forces act solely within the constitutional framework?

Under Article 79 of the Austrian Constitution, the AAFs first and foremost task is the „country's military defence“. Other tasks laid down in the Constitution include the “protection of the constitutionally established institutions as well as their capacity to operate and the population's democratic freedoms”, „the maintenance of order and security inside the country in general“, „rendering assistance in the case of natural catastrophes and disasters of exceptional magnitude“. Additional tasks are stipulated by federal constitutional law. The only constitutional law enacted so far in that respect is the “Federal Constitutional Law on Co-operation and Solidarity in Dispatching Troops and Individuals to other Countries“ (KSE-BVG) (Federal Law Gazette Vol. I, No. 38/1997).

The powers of military organs are extensively regulated in the “Military Powers Act” (Militärbefugnisgesetz), which entered into force on 1 July 2001 (Federal Law Gazette, Vol. 1, No. 86/2000). It covers in a comprehensive way inter alia requests for information, control of persons, instructions to leave a certain place, body search, entering premises, seizure of property, use of weapons and data processing.

3. Procedures related to different forces personnel

3.1 What kind of procedures for recruitment and call-up of personnel for service in your military, paramilitary and internal security forces does your State have?

Pursuant to section 10 of the Military Service Act 2001, Federal Law Gazette Vol. I, No. 146/2001, all male Austrian nationals between the age of 17 and 50 are liable for military service (this liability ends for officers, non-commissioned officers, and staff with special skills at the age of 65). Pursuant to section 11 of the Military Service Act 2001 compulsory military service means the duty to appear before a draft board and to participate in the necessary physical and psychological evaluation, the duty to serve in the AAFs, the duty to fulfil the obligations as member of the „militia“ (reserve) and the duty to notify the military authorities of facts with relevance to the service in the military e.g. change of residence etc.

Section 12 of the Military Service Act 2001 divides the Austrian territory into recruitment areas in order to facilitate the registration, evaluation and induction of persons liable for military service. These areas correspond to the territories of the nine Federal Provinces. Pursuant to section 13 of the Military Service Act 2001 a military command is to be established for each recruitment area, which is responsible for the recruitment of conscripts.

The particulars and other relevant data of persons liable for military service (i.e. name, date and place of birth, place of residence etc.) must, upon request, be communicated to the respective military command by the competent civilian administrative authorities.

After their registration, conscripts are subjected to an evaluation procedure in the year in which they attain the age of 18. Pursuant to section 17 § 1 of the Military Service Act 2001 the examination may only be carried out by evaluation centres (draft boards), which - according to section 15 § 2 of the Military Service Act 2001 - consist of an officer (superior), a doctor and a psychologist. The purpose of the examination is to determine whether a person liable for military service has the physical and mental fitness required for military service. The evaluation procedure usually lasts for 1 1/2 days and is concluded by a written decision declaring him „FIT“, „UNFIT“ or „TEMPORARILY UNFIT“ for military service.

Pursuant to section 9 of the Austrian Military Service 2001 Act only Austrian nationals that have attained the age of 18 (on a voluntary basis this is possible also after having attained the age of 17) and whose fitness for military service has been established by the decision „FIT FOR MILITARY SERVICE“ may be called up for military service. Under section 24 of the Military Service Act they are called-up for national service in accordance with military interests by means of a decree in the form of a draft notice (or where military conditions so require, also by a general announcement by the Federal Minister of Defence and Sports). The draft notice essentially states the type and duration of the military service to be rendered, as well as the place and time at which the person concerned is to report for duty.

Persons liable for military service are assigned to the individual units by taking into account their aptitudes and military requirements and in the absence of any military requirements to the contrary, also by taking into account their profession and other certified expert knowledge, the place of residence, and any wishes regarding the place of duty, type of force and date of call-up.

The induction into the Austrian armed forces occurs at 00.00 hrs of the day stated in the draft notice, even if a draftee fails to comply with it.

For the admission to the police it has to be pointed out that in the Austrian public administration and therefore also in the service of the executive authority applicants with Austria's nationality regardless of their ethnic origin will be affiliated if the designated selection procedures (education, health, record) are passed. The admissions take place in accordance with existing legal regulations of the federal constitution, the law on tender, the public service law for civil servants and the federal Equal Treatment Act.

Recruitment and call up for voluntary military service:

Female Citizens as well as persons liable for military service may volunteer for a kind of military service called "training service," in order to prepare them for a career as an officer, a non-commissioned officer or a member of a unit of the Forces for International Operations. The period of this service can range between a minimum of twelve months up to four years. If imperative military interests so require and upon the written consent of the person concerned, this training service may be extended by a period of up to two years. Personnel applying for this service have to pass an aptitude test including a special medical check-up, a psychological screening and a physical fitness test conducted by the Armed Forces Personnel Agency. Call-up of these personnel is similar to compulsory military service, procedures for the subsequent different employments are numerous and varying.

The admission in the service of the executive authority takes place within the framework of a comprehensive admission procedure. After tending for free positions, the applicants must undergo a security check and a medical examination; complete a written acceptance test as well as an admission interview and athletic test.

3.2 What kind of exemptions or alternatives to military service does your State have?

Under Article 9a § 3 of the Constitution every male citizen is liable for general military service. According to Article 9a § 4 of the Constitution, any person who has refused to fulfil the compulsory military service and has been dispensed from it, is obliged to render an alternative (civilian) service.

The detailed provisions governing military service are regulated in the Military Service Act 2001 and those governing the civilian alternative service in the Civilian Alternative Service Act 1986 (Zivildienstgesetz), Federal Law Gazette No. 679/1986, as amended by Federal Law, Fed. Law Gazette Vol. 1, No. 29/1998.

Exemption from the duty to undergo an evaluation procedure:

All persons liable for military service must in any event undergo an evaluation procedure unless they are exempt by law from doing so. Pursuant to section 18 § 3 of the Military Service Act 2001, the following members of a legally recognised church or religious community are exempt from this duty:

- Ordained priests; persons who have completed their theological studies and are now engaged in spiritual welfare work for the church or teach theology in schools.

- Monks
- Students of theology preparing for the priesthood

Exclusion from the call-up for military service:

Pursuant to section 25 of the Military Service Act 2001 the following persons are excluded from the call-up for military service:

- Persons liable for military service on whom a prison sentence has been imposed and who have been granted a postponement or interruption of serving their sentence, are excluded during the period of postponement or interruption.
- Persons liable for military service that are imprisoned or otherwise detained by order of a public authority, are excluded during the period of imprisonment or detainment.
- Persons liable for military service who fulfil the exemption requirements of p. 18 § 3 of the Military Service Act 2001 unless they have expressly agreed to the call-up.

Moreover, persons liable for military service who have rendered at least two years of service in development assistance abroad, are also exempt from the call-up for military service, unless they have expressly agreed to the call-up.

Exemption from compulsory military service:

Pursuant to section 26 § 1 of the Military Service Act 2001, persons liable for military service are exempt from compulsory military service:

- ex-officio, if and as long as military considerations or other public interests, in particular overall economic or family policy interests, so require, and
- upon their request, if and as long as economic and family interests, that are to be especially taken into account, so require.

Postponement of basic military service:

Unless military interests require otherwise, section 26 § 3 of the Military Service Act 2001 provides for the postponement of basic military service upon a request by persons declared fit for military service, if

- they were attending school or university or were receiving other preparatory professional training at the beginning of the calendar year during which the induction procedure declaring them fit for the first time or fit again after being found „temporarily unfit“ or „unfit“ began.
- they were not called-up for compulsory military service at a certain date within one year after they were in a position to render basic military service, and they would be put at a severe disadvantage as a result of an interruption of their educational or university training or other preparatory professional training.

A postponement may in any case be granted until they have completed their respective training but must not exceed the date of 15 September of the calendar year during which they attain the age of 28.

Duty to render alternative service (civilian alternative service) for conscientious objectors:

The constitutional provision of section 2 § 1 of the Civilian Alternative Service Act in the current version gives all persons liable to military service a subjective right guaranteed by constitutional law to refuse military service for reasons of conscience, requiring them at the same time to render alternative service („civilian alternative service“).

According to this provision, persons liable to military service who within the meaning of the Military Service Act have been found fit for the first time, may declare:

- that they are unable to comply with their duty to render military service because - apart from acting in self-defence or assisting in an emergency - they refuse to use arms against other people for reasons of conscience and would thus be faced with a moral dilemma in the military service, and
- therefore wish to render civilian alternative service.

The right to submit a declaration to that effect is at any rate guaranteed for at least six months following the completion of the pre-induction procedure during which the person liable to military service was for the first time found fit to render such service. In addition, he may submit his declaration until the second day prior to being called-up for compulsory military service. Civilian alternative service lasts for twelve months.

3.3 What are the legal and administrative procedures to protect the rights of all forces personnel as well as conscripts?

Appeals to the Constitutional Court or to the Administrative Court:

All disciplinary actions or measures under the relevant provisions of the service law must be issued in the form of administrative decisions. A soldier who considers his or her right to have been violated by a decision which, after exhaustion of available remedies, has become final, may lodge an appeal against that decision with the Constitutional Court or with the Administrative Court. If the appeal is granted, the impugned decision is repealed.

In addition, a soldier - like any other citizen - may lodge an appeal against a decision by an administrative authority with the Administrative Court and in certain cases with the Constitutional Court.

Appeals Commission at the Federal Chancellor's Office:

Soldiers who are civil servants (career officers, regular non-commissioned officers, contract personnel) may challenge a decision by the hierarchical authority ordering a transfer or qualified change of assignment by appealing to the Appeals Commission at the Federal Chancellor's Office.

Decisions are issued by individual chambers of the Appeals Commission whose chairperson and deputy chairperson must be judges. The Commission is independent and not subject to instructions under the Federal Constitution Act. Decisions by the Appeals Commission may not be challenged before the Administrative Court.

Appeals to an Independent Administrative Tribunal:

In accordance with a special federal constitutional law, Independent Administrative Tribunals were installed in the nine Federal Provinces whose competences include decisions on complaints from persons who claim an infringement of their rights by a measure of direct coercion. Apart from appeals against police actions based on the power of coercion, soldiers may also seize these Independent Administrative Tribunals with complaints against arrests under the military disciplinary law.

Grounds for exemption from Punishment under the Code of Military Offences:

Competence for penalising criminal offences committed by soldiers lies with the general courts of criminal justice. In addition to the penal laws applicable to all citizens, the Code of Military Offences also contains provisions governing a number of other offences, including court sentences for violations of the military duty to obey.

Any conflict between the soldier's duty to obey, on the one hand, and his or her rights and the obligation to observe the general penal laws, on the other, is avoided with the possibility of exemption from punishment explicitly listed in section 17 of Code of Military Offences. A violation of the duty to obey is not liable to punishment under the Code if the instruction constitutes a violation of human dignity; if it is issued by an incompetent person or agency; if it is invalidated by another instruction; if it is rendered redundant by a change of situation and if obeying the instruction would entail a significant drawback; if it is entirely unrelated to national service; or if it orders the perpetration of a criminal offence.

Offences which are committed by superiors or subordinates in violation of the rights of other soldiers are also subject to special punishment under the Code of Military Offences.

Issuance of instructions in writing:

A part from the right to refuse to obey an instruction if one of the reasons above applies, a subordinate is also entitled to request a written version of an oral instruction prior to its execution if the instruction relates to facts, news or projects of military relevance, or if he or she has raised objections to the instruction which were not considered. A superior is obliged to comply with such a request unless this is not feasible for service-related reasons.

Regular complaints:

Under the general service regulations for the Armed Forces, every soldier has the right to complain orally or in writing about any defects or flaws, in particular any injustice or interference with service competences, affecting him or her in the performance of national service.

Regular complaints must be addressed to the competent superior, who is obliged to deal with them expeditiously, however no more than six weeks later. If the complaint is about the superior to whom it would normally be addressed, it may be submitted to the next higher superior. No superior is authorised to deal himself with an ordinary complaint directed against him. If an ordinary complaint is incompletely or not at all granted or dealt with in due time, it may be submitted to the next higher superior within a specified time.

Extraordinary complaint:

A soldier may also lodge a grievance in the form of an extraordinary complaint to the Parliamentary Armed Forces Complaints Commission at the Federal Ministry of Defence and Sports. Extraordinary complaints filed with the competent national service authority must be forwarded, without delay or compliance with official channels, to the Parliamentary Armed Forces Complaints Commission.

The Parliamentary Armed Forces Complaints Commission has been established under a constitutional provision of the Military Service Act and is composed of three chairpersons appointed by the Federal Parliament and six members nominated by the political parties in relation to their number of seats in the Main Committee of the Parliament.

Advisory members of the Commission are the Inspector General of the Armed Forces and a civil servant nominated by the Federal Minister of Defence and Sports. The tasks of the Parliamentary Armed Forces Complaints Commission are to receive, examine and decide on a recommendation to settle extraordinary complaints from persons who are: undergoing voluntary pre-induction or voluntary military training, liable to pre-induction or national service, soldiers, or members of the militia or reserve who are liable to further service after completion of basic national service.

The Commission is also competent to perform ex-officio examinations of suspected flaws and grievances of national service operations. The Commission is authorised to conduct any investigations required under its mandate directly at the site of the grievance, if necessary, and to obtain all relevant information from the competent authorities.

By March 1 the Parliamentary Armed Forces Complaints Commission submits an annual report on its activities and recommendations for the previous year, which must be presented every other year to Parliament by the Federal Minister of Defence and Sports along with a statement on the recommendations contained in the report.

Complaints to the Ombudsman Board:

In addition, soldiers, as all other citizens, have the right to complain about alleged grievances in the federal administration to the Ombudsman Board, established under a constitutional law, to the extent that they are personally affected and provided that no other remedies are available. The Ombudsman Board is obliged to examine each and every complaint that is submitted to it and to inform the appellant about the result of the examination and about the measures taken, if any.

Reports:

In conformity with the General Service Regulations, every soldier is obliged to report to his or her superior, without an invitation, any facts, events, news or projects that are relevant to the service operation, in order to enable the superior to take the necessary measures.

Requests:

Every soldier has the right to submit, orally or in writing, requests to his or her superior (starting at the level of unit commander). Such requests must list specific reasons. Report meetings during which requests or complaints may be submitted orally are held daily by service units and occasionally by superior command units. Requests or complaints may also be presented in a personal interview which must be granted by the superior subject to service schedules.

Requests must be dealt with by the superior after a thorough examination. If the matter is not within his purview, the superior must immediately transmit the request along with his comments to the competent authority. If a request is not approved, a reason for that decision must be provided. If a request is rejected or insufficiently granted, the soldier has the right to submit the request to the officer who is superior to the one having competence for dealing with the request.

Soldiers' representatives and personnel representatives are authorised within their statutory scope of action to submit requests and complaints. They may be asked by soldiers to offer assistance in drafting requests and complaints and to be present during personal talks.

Interferences in the subjective rights of the civil servants or the applicants are just allowed on the basis of legal regulations. The violation of subjective rights of the civil servant can be enforced by the person concerned in the proceedings of the civil servant law through a formal declaratory procedure in writing. Moreover, the civil servant and the applicant as person concerned can enforce a possible claim of occurred claims through civil liability in front of an ordinary court

4. Implementation of other political norms, principles, decisions and international humanitarian law

4.1 How does your State ensure that International Humanitarian Law and Law of War are made widely available, e.g., through military training programmes and regulations?

With the current law (Military Service Act 2001, Code of Military Offences, Civilian Alternative Service Act) and the relevant ordinances (General Service Regulations), decrees (Code of Conduct for Soldiers) and training instructions, the prerequisites of the OSCE Code of Conduct are generally considered to be fully complied with.

In order to ensure availability and dissemination of international humanitarian law, the Ministry of Defence and Sports created a compilation of the relevant legally binding documents and distributed it among the legal advisers and legal teachers of the Austrian armed forces, as well as the concerned legal consultants of the Ministry of Defence and Sports.

4.2 What has been done to ensure that armed forces personnel are aware of being individually accountable under national and international law for their actions?

International humanitarian law and other international rules, conventions and commitments governing armed conflict are elements of curricula of Officers and NCO's courses. Conscripts are informed about international humanitarian law during basic training. Subsequently, international humanitarian law and other international rules, conventions and commitments governing armed conflict are elements of further training of Officers and NCO's. Forces prepared for international missions get additional training in relevant contents. All these instructions are also included in various regulations throughout the AAF..

International humanitarian law and other international rules, conventions and commitments governing armed conflict is communicated at a higher level during basic training to legally trained civil personnel of AAF.

Moreover, the Ministry of Defence and Sports, in cooperation with the International Committee of the Red Cross (ICRC) and under the auspices of the European Security and Defence College (ESDC), is conducting a course on international law for military legal advisers on an annual basis. This international course is open to participants from other European States. Among other topics, it also specifically deals with the criminal and disciplinary accountability of individuals under national and international law.

- 4.3 How does your State ensure that armed forces are not used to limit the peaceful and lawful exercise of human and civil rights by persons as individuals or as representatives of groups nor to deprive them of national, religious, cultural, linguistic or ethnic identity?

Trough relevant ordinances (General Service Regulations), decrees (Code of Conduct for Soldiers) and training instructions military personnel is made aware of in particular to limit military actions in a way not to harm the peaceful and lawful exercise of human and civil rights by persons as individuals or as representatives of groups nor to deprive them of national, religious, cultural, linguistic or ethnic identity. Austrian military personnel are aware of their personal responsibility and accountability for all actions during military service in national and international duties.

Concerning the AAF, a Parliamentary Armed Forces Commission for Complaints has been established under Section 4 of the Military Service Act 2001, whose first and foremost task is to make recommendations for dealing with complaints brought before the Federal Minister of Defence and Sports. Furthermore, the Commission is also entitled to undertake, on its own initiative, inquiries on suspected deficiencies and grievances regarding national service.

Concerning the police the advisory committee on Human Rights advises the Minister of the Interior regarding the ensuring of Human Rights as well as to aid the consequent and systematic orientation of security executive authorities on Human Rights by surveillance and accompanying inspections. The advisory committee on Human Rights makes visits to places of stoppage, identifies shortcomings and proposes concrete solutions. Raids, major events and specific campaigns are well accompanied and checked. The legal regulations for the advisory committee on Human Rights is found in §§ 15a - c of the security police law (SPG). With § 15a SPG a clause of the constitution has found entry in the SPG. By this means the advisory committee on Human Rights as an assigned institution to ensure basic rights has a maximum institutional guarantee and can assure the autonomy and independence of its staff members. Through BGBl. I Nr. 2/2008 the clause of the constitution was concealed and arranged to an ordinary law.

Furthermore, the Office for internal affairs (Büro für interne Angelegenheiten/BIA) of the Ministry of the Interior leads security police and criminal police investigations against “internal wrongdoers”. This means receipt and inspection of accusations and complaints against civil servants of the Federal Ministry of the Interior and subordinated departments that can be assigned to the field of malpractice in office (§§ 302-313 StGB). The BIA is also in charge of investigations regarding public servants of other Ministries and territorial authorities when these are in charge of task in the field of security management or criminal police. In particular cases the BIA is in charge of other similar affairs (e.g. investigations of other grave violation of the official duty such as sexual harassment through superior or colleagues). The BIA has furthermore established itself as specialised agency for the investigation of corruption cases in other areas.. If required relevant investigations in other government departments, in magistrate of cities, areas and districts, in townships as well as in the private sector (keyword: "private sector corruption") are undertaken.

- 4.4 What has been done to provide for the individual service member's exercise of his or her civil rights and how does your State ensure that the country's armed forces are politically neutral?

Under the Federal Constitution Act and the Military Service Act 2001, all members of the AAF generally have the same civic rights as all other citizens.

At the same time, section 43 of the Military Service Act 2001 provides that the members of armed forces must refrain from any partisan political activity during duty hours and within the area of national service, such as promoting the aims and objectives of a political party or in an election campaign, or the organisation of meetings and rallies on military premises. Section 43 § 4 of the Military Service Act 2001 prohibits soldiers from taking part in public meetings, manifestations or demonstrations while in uniform.

In the field of basic rights, there are legal restrictions on the right to freedom of expression regarding the duty to preserve official confidentiality and military secrets. Finally, the rights of soldiers are limited by such duties as provided for by laws and ordinances and specifically necessitated by the peculiarities of a military service operation.

- 4.5 How does your State ensure that its defence policy and doctrine are consistent with international law?

Basic documents setting out the foundations for defence policy and doctrine, such as the 2001 Security and Defence Doctrine or the new Austrian Security Strategy that was adopted by the government at the end of March 2011 and is currently being considered by Parliament are elaborated in procedures that ensure due scrutiny by legal experts under aspects of constitutional as well as international law, in many cases (where security policy in a general sense is concerned) experts not only from the Ministry of Defence and Sports but also from other government agencies such as the Federal Chancellery, the Ministry for European and International Affairs and the Ministry of Interior.

The dispositions of the Federal Constitutional Law on Cooperation and Solidarity in Deploying Units and Individuals Abroad regarding the necessity of troop deployments abroad to be undertaken in accordance with international law as well as the principles of the UN Charter and the Helsinki Final Act have already been mentioned in the answer to question 2.1. Section I.

Furthermore, the structures of democratic control referred to in the answer to question 2.1. of Section II can also be considered as important guarantors for the consistency of national defence policy and doctrine with international law.

Section III: Public access and contact information

1. Public access

1.1 How is the public informed about the provisions of the Code of Conduct?

The implementation of relevant provisions of the Code of Conduct is pursued by the respective Federal Ministries. These Ministries are providing information according to their public policy information on defence and security policy issues through their press and public division on a regularly basis. This is done by press releases or by posting relevant information on the internet homepages of these Ministries, whereas requests for additional information could be made by everyone;

<http://www.bmj.gv.at/buergerinfo/index.php?nav=68>

In addition, public broadcasting stations and selected newspaper are contracted to publish changes and updates on national regulations and laws. Among those also information on national policies related to provisions of the Code of Conduct is provided to the public.

1.2 What additional information related to the Code of Conduct, e.g., replies to the Questionnaire on the Code of Conduct, is made publicly available in your State?

(See answer 1.3 of the same section)

1.3 How does your State ensure public access to information related to your State's armed forces?

Public access to information on the AAF is ensured by the fact that all politically or legally relevant documents and decisions are published and easily made available. This is achieved by using different modes to provide related information;

Internet: www.bmlvs.gv.at

Newspaper: "DER SOLDAT", www.dersoldat.at

Periodical: "TRUPPENDIENST" and "ÖMZ-Österreichische Militärische Zeitschrift"

Events: Presentation of the Austrian Armed Forces on National Holiday 26 October as well as open days at barracks

Seminars: Regular presentation and discussion of military related topics at National Defence Academy and National Military Academy

In addition, the Ministry of Defence and Sports is providing videos, leaflets as well as posters on military activities and missions. Military officers are visiting on request schools and provide information on the military system in Austria.

The rules concerning the access to classified information received by Austria from international organizations and other states are contained in the Law on Information Security (Informationssicherheitsgesetz). It restricts the information access to public officials and other persons if they need access to enable them to fulfil their official duties or for an activity in the public interest (“need to know principle”). The law does not apply in relation to the Austrian Parliament, which has its internal procedures for the protection of classified documents. It stipulates that the Austrian classification has to guarantee the level of protection envisaged by international organizations or other states and would not provide a basis for a higher classification.

2. Contact information

2.1 Provide information on the national point of contact for the implementation of the Code of Conduct.

Annex II: Information on efforts undertaken to further implement Resolution 1325 (2000), which was adopted unanimously by the United Nations Security Council on 31 October 2000.

1. On the international level

Enhancing the implementation of Resolution 1325 and its subsequent resolutions on women, peace and security as well as on sexual violence in armed conflict and mainstreaming its objectives in the daily and in particular country-specific work of the UN Security Council was one of Austria's priorities during its Security Council membership 2009/2010. Austria supported the development of global indicators by the UN Secretary General to measure the implementation of Resolution 1325. On 26 October 2010, the UN Security Council at a high-level open debate discussed these indicators and in a Presidential Statement (PRST/2010/22) decided to take forward the set of indicators for use as an initial framework to track implementation of its resolution 1325. Additionally, Austria actively supported the adoption of Security Council Resolution 1960 (2010), which provides for the establishment of monitoring, analysis and reporting arrangements on conflict-related sexual violence.*

Austria also participated in the work of the EU Task Force 1325 and supported the EU's efforts to strengthen Human Rights and Gender Equality in the EU's Security and Defence Policy Missions through the development of standardized training materials or exchange of best practices. Furthermore, Austria deployed a Gender Advisor to the European Rule of Law Mission (EULEX) in Kosovo.

Gender equality and the empowerment of women are underlying principles of Austria's bi- and multilateral development cooperation. The Austrian Development Agency (ADA) supported projects to strengthen the implementation of Resolution 1325, e.g. in Uganda the implementation of the Gender Capital for Peace Recovery and Development Plan, to strengthen women's participation in political decision making or to strengthen women's participation in peace processes e.g. in the South Caucasus.

2. On the national level

The development and implementation of National Action Plans is crucial to improve the implementation of Resolution 1325 and Austria was one of the first countries to develop a National Action Plan for Resolution 1325 in 2007. A working group chaired by the Federal Ministry for European and International Affairs was established to monitor the implementation of the Action Plan. The group is composed of representatives of all relevant ministries and of the ADA. So far three implementation reports have been submitted to the Council of Ministers and forwarded to the Parliament.

Austria took last year's 10th anniversary of Resolution 1325 as an opportunity to commit to revise and improve its National Action Plan. The revision has already begun in close cooperation with all relevant ministries and civil society and will be finalized this year.

* For further information on Austria's activities in the Security Council relating to women, peace and security, see "Österreich im Sicherheitsrat der Vereinten Nationen 2009/2010", Bericht des Bundesministeriums für europäische und internationale Angelegenheiten (Report of the Austrian Ministry for European and International Affairs), available at http://www.bmeia.gv.at/fileadmin/user\_upload/bmeia/media/2-Aussenpolitik\_Zentrale/UN\_Security\_Council/UN-SR\_Broschuere.pdf

Further concrete national commitments presented by Austria in the Security Council's open debate on Resolution 1325 in October 2010 include to actively support UN Women, inter alia in using and operationalising the global indicators, to assist a partner country in developing a National Action Plan on implementing Resolution 1325, to deploy Gender Field Advisors to peace operations and to establish the position of a Gender Field Expert within Austria's main military contingents in peace operations.

The Austrian Ministry of Defence and Sports took concrete steps to support the implementation of the women, peace and security policy. A qualitative study was conducted in 2010, which identified how far Austrian peacekeepers are informed about the objectives of Resolution 1325 and relevant thematic resolutions and documents. Regarding education and training, specific lectures have been developed and implemented aiming at explaining gender mainstreaming and the women, peace and security policy to Austrian soldiers. Further processes have been implemented to support the increase of the number and percentage of female soldiers, such as specific target oriented recruitment campaigns aimed at attracting female candidates.
