The document does not seek to challenge established agreements between states and religious or belief communities but, rather, to delineate the legal framework that would ensure that communities wishing to do so have a fair opportunity to be granted legal personality, and that the criteria established are applied in a non-discriminatory manner. This document elaborates on the issues of registration and recognition of religious and belief organizations, and supplements section II.F on "Laws governing registration of religious/belief organizations" of the 2004 Guidelines. 72	1 March	Tajikistan	ODIHR/ IEOM	FINAL REPORT on the parliamentary elections in Tajikistan held on 1 March. Almost two-thirds of vote counts observed were assessed negatively. Important procedures were often disregarded, including not cancelling unused ballots, selectively determining the validity of ballots, and signing blank results protocols. The tabulation process was not adequately regulated and lacked transparency at the district and central levels. This report offers a number of recommendations to support efforts to bring elections in line with OSCE commitments and other international obligations and standards for democratic elections.	ODIHR. GAL/30/15	http://www.osce.org/odihr/ elections/tajikistan/127227
73	1 March	Estonia	ODIHR/ EET	FINAL REPORT on the parliamentary elections held in Estonia on 1 March. The Election Expert Team (EET) noted a positive trend of parties across the political spectrum placing candidates belonging to national minorities on party lists, in some cases in prominent positions, and greater efforts by parties and candidates to reach out to Russian-speaking voters, including with campaign information in Russian. While persons of undetermined citizenship could participate in party activities and donate to parties or candidates, despite a previous OSCE/ODIHR recommendation, they do not have the right to join political parties. Despite positive amendments to the Citizenship Act, the pace of naturalization of persons with undetermined citizenship remains slow.	ODIHR. 80	29 March	Uzbekistan	ODIHR/ LEOM	FINAL REPORT on the presidential elections in Uzbekistan held on 29 March. The election took place in the wake of the 2014 December parliamentary elections that were presented by the authorities as a step towards strengthening the role of parliament and political parties. However, despite the formation of a majority and an opposition bloc, the parliament remains in substantial agreement with the president and his policy course. Most OSCE/ODIHR LEOM interlocutors pointed to the lack of a political alternative to the incumbent president, who has been in office since 1991.	ODIHR.
