Arbenita had no job and her financial situation was very difficult for her and her parents. A woman she knew put her in touch with someone who could help her obtain a job as a waitress in another city. She was offered help in transportation and provision of a place to live and was told that she could reimburse the person later. When she arrived she was handed over to a group of men who took her identity documents, told her she owed them money and that she had to pay off the debts. She is now forced to provide sexual services.

What is trafficking in persons?

Trafficking in persons is a modern form of slavery. Traffickers recruit, deceive and transfer their victims. They use force or abduct their victims; sometimes they use their position of power or the vulnerability of the person. Traffickers have only one purpose in mind: to exploit their victims. Exploitation can take different forms including: sexual exploitation, forced labour, servitude or the removal of organs.

Be careful who you trust!

How do traffickers recruit their victims?

Traffickers recruit their victims by taking advantage of their vulnerability and hope for a better future. They promise jobs and income and then create a situation of financial dependency and keep their victims by force.

Drita and Agron have two children. Yesterday Agron lost his job. When he returned home, he does not find Drita. She had taken the kids for a walk. When they arrived home Agron was watching TV and drinking alcohol. He started to shout at Drita for not having prepared dinner for him and started beating her in front of the children. The children tried to prevent him from hurting their mother, and he hurt them too.
