The year 2010 marked the 10th anniversary of UNSCR 1325, which addresses women's role in peace and security. The resolution broke new ground calling for stronger involvement of women in conflict prevention, crisis management and peace-building.

The conference UNSCR 1325: Moving beyond theory to maximize security in the OSCE, will bring together local and international experts to discuss challenges and good practices in the implementation of the resolution. The Sarajevo conference aims at revitalizing the discussion of UNSCR 1325 and promoting practical steps to advance its implementation.

The conference will address:

- Good practices and challenges in the implementation of National Action Plans (NAPs). What are the lessons learnt in creating, implementing and monitoring of NAPs? How can the process be enhanced in countries that already have a NAP, but also for countries that are in the process of creating one?
- What are the key factors for a successful implementation of the NAPs? What resources and human capacities should be set aside and what structures need to be enforced or created?
- What are the synergies between State structures, CSO and International Organisations when creating and implementing NAPs?

The 1325 Conference in Sarajevo is part of a project managed by the Gender Section and funded by the Governments of Lithuania and Norway.
